Hearst Daughter And Her Captors Are Heard From

Mass Free Food Distribution To Needy In State Is Demanded

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The Symbionese Liberation Army today sent publisher Randolph Hearst a tape recording of his daughter's voice in which she said she was "okay." The terrorist group indicated it intended to hold her captive for at least five more weeks.

The SLA demanded a mass distribution of free food to poor people as a condition of saving the life of 19-year-old Patricia Hearst who was kidnaped from her apartment Feb. 4.

The recording of Miss Hearst's voice, broadcast by radio station KPFA was interspersed with sighs as she droned on in a low voice.

"Hi, dad, I'm okay," the recording began.

"I've had a few scares and stuff. I'm not being starved or beaten or unnecessarily frightened."

"I have been kept blindfolded so I can't identify anyone. My hands are often tied but sometimes they're not. I'm not gagged or anything. I'm comfortable. I'm not really terrified or anything."

The letter from the SLA and various tape recordings were sent to Berkeley radio station KPFA. It was the second communication to the station since the abduction and it gave the Hearst family hope that the girl would finally be released unharmed.

One of the recordings was that of a black man who said he was a Symbionese member representing black people.

"Patricia Campbell Hearst is alive," he said.

The voice of Patricia was said to have been recorded Feb.

8. The SLA demanded that the food distribution be made through grocery stores and supermarkets to such people as those on welfare and using food stamps. It demanded that the food be handed out three days a week for a four-week period starting Feb. 19 in towns all the way from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

"When the good faith gesture is conducted ... we will begin to negotiate for the release of your daughter," the letter to Hearst said. "Until then, we will carry out our word to the letter."

Miss Hearst said in the recording, which was addressed to her father, that her captors were "perfectly willing to die" to achieve their goals.

"The only way I'll get out is to do it their way," she said. "I hope you'll do what they say and do it quickly."

"I just want to get out of here and see everyone again and be back with Steve (Steven Weed, her fiancé)."

"I heard mom's really upset. I hope this puts you a little bit at ease so you know I'm really all right. I just hope I can get back to everybody real soon."

The SLA said the girl was being treated as a "prisoner of war" and would be treated

A WREATH FOR LINCOLN

President Nixon placed a wreath at the foot of the statue of Abraham Lincoln during an unannounced visit to the Lincoln Memorial this morning on the 165th anniversary of the birth of the Civil War president. Nixon said

Lincoln was his personal inspiration and that he drew strength from the way Lincoln bore up under criticism "no matter how harsh or unfair that criticism might be."

No Limit On Gas For Two Hours

Fourteen Novato gasoline station operators, frustrated by "panic buying," agreed yesterday to be open from 7 to 9 a.m. weekdays and to place no limit on any customer's purchase during those hours.

The group, representing half the 28 service stations in Novato, took the step toward uniformity so customers would know for certain when gasoline would be available.

Stations probably will remain open later, some in the late afternoon, and service bays will be open all day, the operators said.

The owners and operators met at the Novato Community House with Mayor Fred F. Ruegg to meet the problems of panic buying and irregular hours of operation.

Nixon Names Woman To Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon named Carla Anderson Hills of Los Angeles today as new head of the Justice Department's civil division.

Subject to Senate confirmation, Mrs. Hills, 39, will be the first woman to hold the rank of an assistant attorney general since the 1920s when President Woodrow Wilson appointed Annette Abbot Adams and Mabel Walker Willebrandt as assistant attorney general.

Mrs. Hills, a Republican, was chosen to succeed Harlington Wood Jr. in the $38,000 per year post.

They sought to eliminate customers "topping off" their gasoline tanks and riding around the city looking for an open station, and reduce the car lineups that cause traffic hazards and disrupt their normal service work.

They bypassed such methods as limiting sales or selling gasoline to customers on alternate days, by license plate number, as they do in Oregon and several other states.

Eldon Hasstedt of Novato Chevron Service, Grant Avenue and Seventh Street, said, "You get a big line and someone fills up with 71 cents worth... they're spending that much waiting in line."

"I think if we open the same hours, it will cut out a lot of this," another operator said.

"When other stations are closed, they flock to you," one owner said.

The operators said their allocations, based on 1972, aren't adequate because the area population has increased about 5,000 since then. They also said there was a gasoline price war in San Francisco in 1972, which resulted in Novato commuters buying their gasoline out of town that year, so sales for that year aren't representative.

Ruegg said the city could request allocation officials to boost the allocation for Novato.

The operators agreed to try the uniform opening for a week and to meet again at 5 p.m. Tuesday at the Novato Community House.

France Is Lone Oil Talks Holdout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All the European Common Market countries except France sided today with the United States' proposals for dealing with the global oil crisis. West Germany expressed scorn publicly for the French position.

At the Washington Energy Conference of 13 major oilimporting countries, France found itself isolated in demanding that the energy crisis be turned over to the United Nations and in opposing any step that might further antagonize the major Arab oil producing nations.

The other eight Common Market countries lined up behind the proposals of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for two more international conferences, climaxed by one involving both major oil consumers and producers, before May 1.

Kissinger proposed another, broader meeting of oil-consuming states, including hard-hit developing nations whose economies are threatened by steeply rising oil prices.

Then would follow a meeting of both oil-consuming and producing states, where he suggested, an accord might be reached on a fair world price for oil.

West Germany's finance minister, Helmut Schmidt, took direct aim at the contention of French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert that the Europeans could deal with the Arab countries without U.S. help. Schmidt said bluntly in a meeting with reporters that this was untrue.

The Bonn official said the Europeans were not able to produce an armistice in the Middle East and "they are not able to maintain the balance in their own continent." They must rely on the "good will and cooperation" of the United States, Schmidt said.

In the Mideast, Schmidt said, only the United States was able to bring about an armistice and that only the Americans had the political and military power to maintain it.

France, which has pursued a go-it-alone policy in making oil deals with Arab nations, was under pressure to fall in line behind the American position.

Schmidt acknowledged that "the difficulties we are having here" raise a problem for the Common Market itself, but said the organization had faced and overcome crises before.

The conference ends tonight and a communique will spell out the agreed-upon position of the oil-consuming states attending the meeting at the State Department.

Most Arab nations have denounced the conference.

Post Against Quentin Remodeling Proposal, Says Prison Worn Out

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A $2.5 million remodeling proposal for San Quentin Prison should be abandoned, and the state should instead plan on building a new prison with state oil funds, Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post said today.

He said the Reagan administration's plans for interim repairs at San Quentin would be "throwing good money after bad into this worn-out institution."

"San Quentin is just plain worn out in terms of any decent maintenance... we're choosing a bad way and not getting anything for it," he testified before the Senate finance committee.

Post said higher crude oil prices will bring in between $60 million and $200 million extra for the state from its leased lands during the coming year, and that some of this money could be used for a new prison at San Quentin.

Committee Chairman Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, cited a $15 million figure for San Quentin repairs, and Post mentioned a $20 million annual figure as the start of a long-range prison reconstruction program of up to $100 million.

Post said a new, smaller prison, designed to meet new criteria of community-oriented institutions, could be built at San Quentin for use first as an annex to the present prison.

He said the old institution could be eliminated entirely as other new smaller institutions are built around the state.

Action Halting Toll Increase Is Sought

Taxpayer's Suit Looms If Bridge Plea Denied

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Legal action to halt a toll hike on the Golden Gate Bridge was asked yesterday by three San Francisco supervisors.

If City Atty. Thomas M. O'Connor declines to act on the request, the supervisors said, a taxpayer's suit to stop the increase will be filed instead by unnamed citizens.

(Bridge directors have said they will ask, in turn, that anyone filing such a suit be required by the court to post a bond to indemnify the district for lost revenue if the suit fails.)

The toll hike, voted 12-4 on Friday by the bridge board, will raise tolls from 50 to 75 cents for a round-trip crossing. It will raise an additional $4 million a year to offset rising operating deficits of the district's bus and ferry system.

O'Connor's office said yesterday it will be several days before a decision is made whether to file the suit. It would be based on O'Connor's previous opinion that the nine San Francisco appointees on the bridge board must vote only in accord with policy set by the city's board of supervisors.

The supervisors adopted a policy last May opposing any toll hike, but three of the city's delegates to the bridge board nevertheless voted for the increase. Since it takes 10 votes on the bridge board to raise tolls, Friday's action required at least one of the San Francisco three votes for the increase.

In a related action, a resolution was introduced in the state Assembly asking Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post to make "a study of the effectiveness" of the district's transit operation. The same three supervisors, John L. Molinari, Robert E. Gonzales and Quentin L. Kopp, asked for both O'Connor's suit and the Post study.

The Assembly resolution, HR 113, was introduced by Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Fifth Congressional District,

A PROBLEM OF HOT AIR

Marin County Administrator John F. Barrows has had enough of the hot air that accumulates each Tuesday in the board of supervisors' meeting room.

"The problems with ventilation in the supervisors' chambers reached a new peak during the board meeting last Tuesday," he said in a memorandum to the public works department.

He asked that the air conditioning system, turned off to save energy, be turned on whenever the board meets.

Barrows said supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste suffered so much discomfort from the heat last week that he left the meeting several minutes before the board adjourned.

Solzhenitsyn Is Taken Into Custody

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police today took author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn into custody after he defied a second summons from the state prosecutor's office, friends said.

Four plainclothes policemen and several uniformed officers went to his home shortly after 5 p.m. and escorted him to the prosecutor's office, the friends said.

It was not known if he offered any resistance.

Solzhenitsyn's mother-in-law, Mrs. Svetlova, said there were eight policemen. "They were terribly rough," she said.

"They told him he was being taken in connection with an investigation of an important case of the state prosecutor."

Mrs. Svetlova said her daughter Natalya answered the door this afternoon. When she opened it, she saw the same man who had brought the two summons. Natalya asked how many men there were.

"They told her two," said Mrs. Svetlova.

At this point, Solzhenitsyn appeared near the door and the policemen forced their way into the apartment, she said.

Mrs. Svetlova said the policemen cut her telephone line before leaving. She called newsmen from a public telephone outside.

Solzhenitsyn, under attack as a traitor for publishing "The Gulag Archipelago," his new documentary book on Stalinist mass terror, had been summoned to appear at 10 a.m. at the office of state prosecutor A. Balashov, but he had willfully ignored the summons.

End To Oil Crisis Seen In 'Months'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The energy crisis will be over "in a matter of months" although it is not without its "critical dimensions now," President Nixon's budget chief said today.

Roy L. Ash told a group of reporters that the oil shortage is "one-time and short-term," insisting it is not "pernicious and long-lasting."

"It will be over in a matter of months, not years," Ash said.

Asked if it would be solved this year, he replied: "Yes."

Ash qualified his remarks to point out that Americans may have to change their lifestyles somewhat.

He said there is now a 7 per cent shortfall of the U.S. energy supply due to the Arab oil embargo. Even when the embargo is lifted, he said there would have to be more equitable distribution and allocation of supplies.

A White House spokesman announced that President Nixon would meet with energy chief William E. Simon tomorrow to continue his assessment of the energy problem.

Deputy press secretary, Gerald L. Warren, said Nixon would review with Simon current statistics and would check on the results of new state gasoline rationing plans.

The President, Warren told reporters, is "well aware of the situation at gas stations," and added:

"He also is aware in some states that the situation has been alleviated by the actions of state governments. The President favors voluntary conservation and favors the action the states are taking which they deem to be necessary within the law."

In a related development, it was announced that Nixon would send to Congress tomorrow his transportation message, including proposals for federal assistance to mass urban transportation systems and to ailing railroads.

Gasoline rationing went into effect in four states yesterday and while petrol wasn't exactly gushing, it offered some relief—if only from the long lines motorists had faced waiting for a turn at the pumps.

Odd-even gasoline allocation plans began yesterday in New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Washington State and the District of Columbia. Pennsylvania and Maryland will start similar programs tomorrow. It will bring to eight the number of states adopting rationing under the "Oregon plan."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Nitze To Take Pentagon Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A leading Democrat, Paul H. Nitze, is slated to take a job in the Pentagon.

His duties are expected to include lobbying in Congress for administration nuclear weapons programs.

Nitze is expected to take over soon as assistant defense secretary for international security affairs, the same slot he held under President John F. Kennedy.

Nitze later became Navy Secretary. In the middle of the Vietnam War he became deputy defense secretary, the No. 2 civilian post in the Pentagon, serving there until the inauguration of President Nixon.

Relief Effort In Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The government launched a massive emergency relief effort today after 96 persons were killed and 170 wounded in the worst shelling of the war against the Cambodian capital.

Prime Minister Long Boret, in announcing emergency measures to help survivors, lashed out at "this criminal, barbarous and inhuman act of the enemy."

He said insurgents shelling the beleaguered city for the past two months "do not hesitate to sow death and destruction among our innocent brothers."

Boret

Iranian Protest

TEHRAN (UPI) — Iranian foreign ministry officials said today Iran has sent a "strong note of protest" to Iraq over Sunday's border clashes.

Iran put its casualties at 41 soldiers dead and 81 wounded and Iraq said it lost 23 men killed.

There were no further reports of clashes which the two countries accused each other of having provoked in an area of frequent skirmishes on the border 100 miles east of Baghdad.

Prisoner Swap

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnam and the Viet Cong exchanged prisoners today and cease-fire violations appeared to diminish — one year after the first American prisoner of war walked to freedom in Hanoi.

By midafternoon, the Saigon command reported it had released 136 pro-Communist civilians of the 256 it had promised to turn over to the Viet Cong. The Viet Cong had returned 80 of the 100 prisoners they were to free, the command said.

Extradition Fight

BRASILIA (UPI) — Train robber Ronald Biggs has decided to wage a legal battle against extradition to Britain, basing his case on the pregnancy of his Brazilian girlfriend.

"I don't want to return to England and Brazilian laws block my extradition now that I am going to be the father of a Brazilian child," Biggs said at a press conference yesterday.

Biggs, convicted in Britain for taking part in the Great Train Robbery of 1963 escaped from prison in 1965.

Snag On Women

TUNIS (UPI) — Plans for a merger of Tunisia and Libya hit another snag today as the two countries quarreled over the position of women.

Tunisia is committed to women's emancipation but Libya says what Tunisia really wants is prostitution and that's against the Moslem faith.

Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafi, who favors relegating women to a secondary role, attacked "shameful and decadent" elements who "offer women to tourists under the guise of emancipation." Khadafi did not refer to Tunisia specifically.

Strike Expanded

BONN (UPI) — A two-day strike that halted most of the West Germany's public transportation and garbage collection was expanded today to include river and ocean port workers.

The workers yesterday rejected a government offer that fell far short of the 15 per cent wage increase sought.

The strike was scheduled to end for all workers at midnight.

Free Bread

ROME (UPI) — Bakers who left Rome without bread yesterday gave it away for free today.

Spokesmen for the Rome bakers association said both yesterday's surprise strike and today's free distribution were in protest against a government price freeze which they say is unfair to them.

Housewives besieged the city's 4,000 bakeries for the free bread.

Rockefeller For Prompt Action On Impeachment

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Daily News reported today that former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller wants impeachment proceedings against President Nixon to start as quickly as possible and be done with.

In an interview, Rockefeller told the Daily News: "We've got to get to the bottom of it and get it out. ... It's the only thing left that's going to satisfy the people."

Then he added, in effect addressing himself to Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., of the House Judiciary Committee, "Get your facts and make a presentation one way or another."

Bomb Hurts 10

LONDON (UPI) — A 50-pound bomb exploded at Britain's National Defense College outside London today, injuring 10 soldiers.

The incident at the college followed the bombing of a bus carrying British servicemen and their families in Yorkshire little more than a week ago. That attack, on Feb. 4, claimed 12 lives.

Storm Subsidies

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Hurricane force winds and heavy rains battering coastal Europe died down in some areas today, leaving widespread flooding, sunken ships and death in their path.

The storm, packing winds of up to 100 miles an hour, left 19 persons dead and many others injured, police said.

Off northern Norway, gale-whipped seas pushed a fishing trawler onto a reef yesterday, drowning 11 sailors.

More than 40 towns and villages were flooded on England's South Coast.

Spain Plans To Ease Political Freedoms

MADRID (UPI) — Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro announced plans today for a series of political reforms aimed at giving Spaniards greater political freedom and closing the curtain on more than three decades of one-man rule.

Arias unveiled his plan in a speech before the Cortes (parliament), promising to give the people an "articulate, operative and critical" voice in national affairs.

He praised Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Spain's 81-year-old chief of state, but said the country must prepare itself for "the sad and inexorable day when Franco is no longer by our side."

"Spaniards, and the government as well, must get used to the idea that we can not continue to place unconsciously the responsibility for political innovation on the noble shoulders of the chief of state," Arias said.

He said his plan would give labor unions greater bargaining power, provide for the direct election of mayors, revamp parliament and create political associations.

CARLOS ARIAS NAVARRO Promises people a voice

Up until now, the government has appointed mayors and tightly controlled labor unions. Although full-scale political parties would remain banned, he said the political associations would create debate on key national issues and bring new leaders into public view.

White House Silent On Tape Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House has declined to comment on whether President Nixon has agreed to furnish Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski all the tape recordings and documents he needs to conduct the Watergate investigation.

Jaworski has publicly complained that the White House has declined to furnish some information he requested.

Presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren said yesterday James D. St. Clair, Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, wanted to conduct the negotiations with Jaworski's office in a "spirit of confidentiality."

Warren also declined to say whether Nixon was conducting his own investigation into the erasure of an 18-1/2 minute segment of a White House tape recording relinquished to Jaworski earlier under court orders.

"There is a grand jury looking into this matter," Warren said. "I would not comment on this entire matter."

Violence all but disappeared from the highways as the independent truckers' strike dwindled yesterday.

There were some holdouts, but reports from around the country indicated that truck traffic was back to nearly normal.

Dissident truckers complained that the Washington agreement of last Thursday should have included a rollback of diesel fuel prices and that highway speed limits should be raised to 65 miles per hour. The industrial states, which had been hit hardest by the strike that began 12 days ago, reported the reopening of plants and cancellation of the projected closing of others.

Fresh fruits and vegetables also were moving to markets.

In other states: Iowa—About 250 to 300 truckers from across the state met in Des Moines and voted to continue their strike.

California—Truck traffic was running at normal levels at weighing stations in Southern California. Several major truck stops reopened yesterday.

Arizona—Walt Sherwood, a truckers' spokesman, in announcing all truckers in the state voted to go back to work today, said, "We decided to give the country 60 days to try and resolve the problems. If they don't we voted to shut down again."

Michigan—Independent truckers in western Michigan voted to accept the government settlement and return to work.

Ohio—The Council of Independent Truckers' board of directors announced the firing of President George Rynn, while Rynn claimed he dismissed the board and replaced it with a new five-man panel.

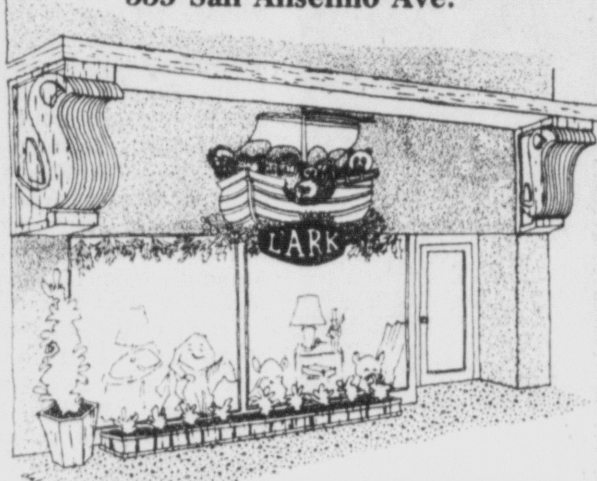

New York—Pickets were reported at the Bethlehem Steel Co. plant in Lackawanna, as members of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers rejected the agreement between the government and the trucking industry.

DEMONSTRATION — Thomas Wilson (in light jacket), Petaluma's water superintendent, explains to Scouts and Explorers how the city's filtration plant works, removing sediment and other impurities to render drinking water sparkling clear. Visiting city facilities yesterday were boys of Troops 2, 3, 8, 12, 18, 74 and 111.

Scouts 'Run' Petaluma For A Day

By ERNEST MURPHY
Twenty-six Petaluma scouts and explorers yesterday tried their hand at running city hall.

Like their older and supposedly wiser counterparts, they didn't quite solve all the city's problems — but they learned something and evidently had fun, not to mention fried chicken and a furlough from school for the afternoon.

The occasion was Petaluma's 23rd annual Boy Scouts in Government Day, a time when youths find out what makes the city tick by playing the roles of the people in charge.

The scouts, ranging in age from 11 to 17, filled in as councilmen and administrators and even held a city council meeting last night to cap off a day spent exploring the police department, a fire station and sewage and water plants.

"The main thing is that they learn a lot about how government works and what it has to offer," said Ray C. Kelly, public works superintendent. Kelly has helped organized the yearly event for the last 15 years.

He said the mock council meeting is considerably more exciting than a routine parliamentary exercise.

"When they have a couple of really sharp boys on the council they'll get into some pretty good debates," he said. "Some-times, though, a scout will have a pet project — like fixing up the street he lives on."

At last night's mock council meeting the scouts stuck to real issues — whether to support the library and parks bond issue which voters will decide March 5, what to do to upgrade public transportation and whether to junk all the parking meters in Petaluma's downtown district.

The tour of city facilities had a little of something for every scout.

For Darwin Hinton it was the myriad switches, lights and dials which control the city's secondary sewage treatment plant. "I didn't know about all of this," he said in slightly awestruck tones.

The thing that impressed Clifford Hubbard Jr. was the fire station. "They're really huge," he said of the firefighting trucks. "The one I saw was lots bigger than I ever thought they were. And all the stuff — the equipment — was neat, too."

But for Roy Cameron the best part was the fact that "we could take over the government. I wish we could do it all year so we could learn more about how it works."

Judge Splits Up Arizona Couple In Cocaine Case

An Arizona couple was split up yesterday by a Marin Superior Court judge, who ordered the husband to spend a year in county jail and the wife to enter a drug treatment program.

Besides the jail time, John Martin Cahal, 24, of Tucson, was placed on three years' probation and ordered to submit to narcotics search without a warrant.

Judge Charles Read Best ordered Cahal's wife, Sally Louise Cahal, 21, to spend two years on probation, gave her a suspended 90-day jail term and ordered her to enter a rehabilitation program.

The couple was arrested in December 1972 on suspicion of possessing cocaine for sale. San Rafael police were called to their room at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael following a report Cahal had accidentally overdosed on cocaine.

Found in the room was $7,500 in cash and an ounce of cocaine, according to police.

Best told Cahal yesterday he is "very lucky not to be going to prison. There are indications here you were no small-time dealer but a big-time dealer."

The Cahals pleaded guilty to simple possession of cocaine, a less serious offense than possession for sale.

Immediate Action Wanted On Impeachment

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Leaders of the Sacramento County Young Republicans have urged the House Judiciary Committee to act immediately to allow the full House to vote on whether President Nixon should be impeached.

All Americans, Republicans and Democrats alike, deserve to know if their President is guilty or innocent of impeachable crimes."

which use no state funds. His resolution asks that Post make an interim report by Oct. 1 and a final report by Jan. 6 next year.

Burton's introduction of the measure made moot a move by the three San Francisco supervisors to have their fellow supervisors endorse their call for a study by Post. Their resolution said there had been "serious cost overruns" on the transit system.

The bus and ferry system's price tag has gone from about $25 million to over $42 million in the past three years. District officials have said the increase was due to a 50 per cent cost jump from inflation and to expansion of the bus fleet from 132 to 188 coaches.

The president of the district, San Francisco attorney Stephan C. Leonoudakis, pointed out yesterday that both Gonzales and Molinari have voted as bridge directors against various ferry expenditures — contrary to their board of supervisors' policy favoring ferries. It hardly was fair for them to object to his vote for the toll hike when they themselves have voted contrary to city policy, he told newsmen.

The three supervisors, at an afternoon press conference in city hall, said they would not seek to remove from the bridge board Leonoudakis and the two other San Francisco appointees who voted for the toll hike.

Kopp declared the vote by the three undermined "the integrity of the policy-making body of San Francisco, namely the board of supervisors."

The huge bomber veered some 300 yards off the runway during a takeoff on a routine training mission and Captain Baldy was found lying near the burning wreckage.

Roth Pays Filing Fee For His Bid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About 100 supporters joined San Francisco businessman and UC Regent William Matson Roth of Ross as he paid his filing fee and formally declared himself in the race for governor.

The Democratic hopeful cited the need for independence in a candidate and said "we must cut the umbilical cord between large corporations and political campaigns."

He also charged that the campaigns of his opponents for the Democratic nomination who are already officeholders are being "in part, financed by the public."

"The staffs of the speaker (Robert Moretti), a congressman (Jerome Waldie), a mayor (Joseph Alioto) and the secretary of state (Edmund G. Brown Jr.) are being used for campaign funds," he said.

ference included:

1. Conservation —Development of new energy sources by cooperating and sharing the costs of conservation and reducing pressures on world supply.

2. Alternative energy sources —The industrial powers must concentrate on known fuel resources, including coal, but must develop the technology required to take advantage of the resources of the offshore continental shelves and nonconventional deposits of shale and other resources.

3. Research and development —The U.S. government and private industry are prepared to spend $23.5 billion over the next five years on developing techniques for additional sources of energy, particularly nuclear power, and are ready to cooperate with others in this field.

4. International financial cooperation —If the industrial nations cannot eliminate trade imbalances created by soaring oil prices themselves, the task must be approached on an international basis with both producers and consumers engaged in "cooperative solutions."

5. Less developed countries —These countries should be invited to join the next meeting of the oil consuming nations. The producer nations "should have a special understanding for the problems facing the poorer nations."

6. Consumer-producer relations —"Our ultimate goal must be to create a cooperative framework within which producers and consumers will be able to accommodate their differences and reconcile their needs and aspirations ... It seems clear that enlightened self-interest of consumers and producers need not and should not be in conflict."

Woman's Voice Saves A Life

LONDON (UPI) — Police said yesterday Constable Graham McClarty probably owes his life to a housewife who sprang to his rescue during a bank holdup and sent a gunman to flight with her voice.

They said the gunman held McClarty at gunpoint outside the bank in the Lambeth district to cover the escape of his accomplices.

But he fled when the woman ran toward him and shouted, "Don't you shoot our policeman," a spokesman said. They withheld the woman's identity but the spokesman said, "It was a very brave thing for her to do. Her action may have save the policeman's life."

HEARST

The SLA letter said that those who do not receive the demanded food should "voice your discontent" in the streets and other places where the SLA could find out about it.

It called on such organizations as the United Farm Workers Union, and United Prisoners Union to act as observers to make sure that all qualifying persons receive the food.

Enclosed with the letter was an SLA "declaration of war" which the SLA demanded be placed in the news media and other prominent locations. The letter also demanded that the tape of Miss Hearst's voice be distributed by the news media.

Failure to carry out the demands, the letter said, would "jeopardize the prisoner."

The original word that the second letter had been received came from Hearst, who leaned out of a second-story window at his mansion to shout the news to reporters waiting below. In the rambling letter and lengthy statement of principles which was broadcast in full by KPFA, the SLA said:

"We have heard it said that Mr. Hearst wants to save his daughter. We want to save all the people."

The food distribution scheme, the SLA said, must include meats, vegetables and dairy products "of top quality" and must be made available in such quantities that they will not run out.

The letter specifically mentioned that distribution be made through major food chains such as Safeway and Mayfair markets.

Also among those to receive the free food would be disabled veterans, persons holding "medical cards," or jail or bail release slips.

The letter said distribution should be made in low-income areas such as the Mission District and Chinatown of San Francisco, East and West Oakland, East Palo Alto, Watts, Compton and East Los Angeles.

In a tape recording from the SLA, a voice of a man who said he was black and a member of the SLA called Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, "chief of the fascist public media."

The voice on the tape recording listed what it said were Hearst interests in newspapers and magazines, radio and television, and real estate ownership. It criticized the University of California Board of Regents, of which Miss Hearst's mother is a member, as supporters of "corrupt governmental regimes in Africa and Rhodesia."

Increased Iron In Bread Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has ordered a month's delay in the start of its controversial proposal to double the content of iron in white bread.

The FDA said yesterday it would hold a hearing April 1 because of objections received from various members of the public, including five doctors, who said added iron in the American diet could be a health hazard for certain persons whose systems store too much of the element.

The FDA proposed Oct. 2 that the iron content of both enriched flour and enriched bread and rolls be increased as of this April 15. Yesterday's order delayed the start of the increase "pending the outcome of the hearing."

FIREMEN'S DORMITORY GOING UP FAST

Carpenters put finishing touches on the framing of the first floor of the new Marin County Fire Department dormitory in Woodacre. Construction was almost ready yesterday to begin on the upper floor of the $150,000 project, after only one week of work. When completed, the building will house 22 firemen, with offices, a kitchen and day room on the ground floor.

Mrs. Frederick Eyes Water Board Seat

Winifred S. Frederick, opposing a water district becoming involved in planning and growth control, announced today she is seeking a seat on the Marin Municipal Water District board of directors.

Mrs. Frederick, 54, of Lagunitas, said the sole function of the water district should be "to provide water when and where it's needed. The present directors are trying to usurp the planning powers of the county and the cities."

She wrote the ballot argument opposing Measure B, the Sonoma-Marina Aqueduct, four years ago.

Currently, she represents the Irate Taxpayers of Marin at meetings of the county board of supervisors.

Appointed by supervisors to the Family and Children's Services Advisory Committee six years ago, she chairs that group's subcommittee on housing.

Mrs. Frederick was elected a trustee of the Lagunitas School District board in 1958 and was an original member of the College of Marin Citizens' Advisory Committee.

Last September, she resigned for personal reasons from the state executive board of the Association of California School Districts after 13 years as a director.

She and her husband, Stanley R. Frederick, an administrative assistant for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., have three children.

She is the first person to announce candidacy for one of the seats of directors Jack R. Felson, Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and Dr. L. Martin Griffin, whose terms are expiring.

Discussion On House Numbering

The need for better house numbering was stressed this morning at a joint meeting of the Novato City Council and the Novato Fire Protection District board at the Alvarado Inn.

Fire Chief Jack W. Kidder said sometimes firemen "have a devil of a time finding a home," and lose crucial time in emergencies such as a heart attack call.

Lighted house numbers of reflective numbers would be an aid and a better numbering system is needed in some areas, he said.

Councilmen and directors agreed that a potential ordinance on house numbering be prepared for study.

Kidder also asked that the fire district be informed when the city's plan review committee revises plans since "even changing the direction of a building can cause problems."

Woman Is Hurt In Auto Rollover

A Santa Venetia woman was injured in a one-car accident on Highway 101 opposite Marin City at 11 p.m. yesterday, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Officers said the car driven by Sue Ellen Balston, 33, of 603 Vendola Drive, suddenly went out of control while she was northbound in the center lane. The car veered across all the northbound lanes, hit a ditch and rolled end-over-end twice.

Mrs. Balston was reported in satisfactory condition today in Marin General Hospital today with a broken rib and possible internal injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

Pay Report For School Jobs Rapped

Nonteaching personnel hired by the Marin County Schools office claimed last night that a salary survey prepared by the county schools director of personnel is not a true reflection of salary conditions in Marin.

Thomas B. Lowry, personnel director and writer of the report, said representatives of the California School Employees Association and Marin Association of Public Employees appeared before the Marin County Schools Personnel Commission to protest his findings.

He said the employee organizations said high salary figures for the city and county of San Francisco were not reflected in the salary survey but should have been.

Leaving out the higher San Francisco figures made Marin salaries seem higher than they actually are when compared to other groups, the employee organizations claimed.

"It's a common practice to exclude them because they are so high," Lowry said.

His report compares salaries for nonteaching personnel in Marin to salaries in private industry, governmental units and other county schools offices.

He recommended no change in salaries based on the current figures but today emphasized that his recommendation does not preclude a "cost of living" increase for employees next year.

Employee groups will return to the personnel commission when it meets March 11 and will provide their own figures on present salary conditions, Lowry said.

Capsule Due Tests

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Skylab 3 command module, drained of remaining fuel since Friday's splashdown, will go by truck tomorrow to Rockwell International's plant in Downey for tests to determine if any elements failed. The capsule appears in good condition a Navy spokesman said.

No Malfeasance In Synanon Case

Investigation into charges by Synanon against the Marin County District Attorney's office found "no improprieties or malfeasance," the county grand jury has reported.

In a letter to Synanon attorney Dan L. Garrett Jr., the grand jury said it found no grounds for the charges that the county prosecutor neglected to investigate vigorously last year's theft of tape recordings from the rehabilitation center in Marshall.

Garrett had said in a letter to the grand jury that Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales had failed to investigate the matter in a timely fashion. Garrett at one point called for Bales' resignation.

"We found no improprieties or malfeasance of any officer or the department in its investigative methods nor irregularities in the timetable of the prosecution of this case," it said. The letter was signed by F. Charles Ruegg, grand jury foreman.

Two former Synanon residents have since been charged and are awaiting preliminary hearings on suspicion of burglarizing Synanon offices in Marshall. They are Twilver Tenola Earle, 25, and George Gilbert Faucette, 61.

Synanon has charged that the two men took at least 55 tape recordings to aid the San Francisco Examiner in defending itself against a $32 million libel suit filed by Synanon.

Subdivision In Novato Is Approved

Mission Estates, a 30-unit subdivision, gained double approval last night from the Novato Planning Commission.

Commissioners approved both a tentative map and precise development plans for the subdivision on 10.5 acres on the west side of Eucalyptus Avenue between Center Road and Vineyard Avenue.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

PRESERVE — Recommended that 8.67 acres of the Wilfred Lieb property at 1521 Hill Road be placed in agricultural preserve.

SCENIC RESTRICTION — Recommended that 7.54 acres of the Olivia Lytle property at 1750 Marion Avenue be placed in scenic restriction category, to assure it as open space.

JEFFREY COURT — Approved a tentative map of a 14-lot subdivision on 3.5 acres along Leese Lane, west of Simmons Lane.

NEXT MEETING — Set a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the Novato Community House on regulations for condominiums.

Peshtigo Fire Survivor Dies

STEVENS POINT, Wis. (UPI) — Mrs. Augusta Bruce, the last known survivor of the worst fire tragedy in the recorded history of the North American Continent, is dead at the age of 104.

She died Sunday night at the Portage County Home.

Mrs. Bruce was three years old that Oct. 8, 1871, when fire destroyed the logging town of Peshtigo, Wis., and 16 surrounding communities, claiming at least 1,500 lives.

Mrs. Bruce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Werner, were German immigrants who had settled in the northeastern community of Peshtigo shortly before the fire. The Werner family and other survivors escaped the flames by wading into the Peshtigo River.

Highway Land Sales Increase

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Transportation has sold more than 9,000 parcels of land originally destined for highway use and valued at $40 million since 1972, the Little Hoover Commission said yesterday.

The commission, established in 1962 to promote efficiency and economy in all branches of state government, made a 1971 study of unused land not needed for highway use.

At that time it found no inventory in the Division of Highways, a lack of system and little real interest related to land disposal. It recommended the department sell all property held in excess.

At the time of the study, the commission said, it found the sale of surplus property amounted to only $2 million a year.

Year-Round School Plan Is Shelved

Mill Valley's Middle School definitely will not be converted to a year-round schedule during the 1974-75 term, school district board members decided last night.

But district Supt. Peter Palches said the board agreed to go ahead with discussions on changing one of the district elementary schools to such a schedule.

Palches said the decision on the Middle School was based partly on the fact that the school's faculty felt converting just one of the school's four "pods" to a year-round calendar would create staffing problems. And if the entire school was converted to a year-round calendar, he said, parents of children who object to the program would have no other place in the district to send their junior-high-age children.

The board then approved a questionnaire for elementary school parents asking their opinion on a year-round program at their children's schools. Palches said the survey results "would not be considered a vote" but will be one piece of information which the board will use in deciding whether to put one of the schools on a year-round basis.

Also last night, Palches told the board he estimates district enrollment will have declined by 7.1 per cent by the end of 1974, while the staff of teaching employees will have increased 2.3 per cent. He said he would return to the Feb. 25 board meeting with recommendations on cutting the teaching force to solve financial problems.

As of last fall, the district had an average daily attendance of 3,184 and a teaching force of 476.

Error Puts Light Poles On Sidewalks

An error in plans for improvement of Park Road will require shifting sites of four light poles at a cost of about $3,000, the Fairfax Town Council learned last night.

The problem arose when workmen improving the road discovered that plans would have put the poles in the middle of the sidewalk, according to Councilman Albert E. Gately.

Gately said the error will require widening of the sidewalk in two places to accommodate two poles, and shifting entirely the locations of two other poles.

Gately said responsibility for the mistake lies with City Engineer Ben C. Albritton and the Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

In other business last night, the council referred to the planning commission an amendment to the zoning ordinance aimed at correcting erroneous rezoning of two parcels adjacent to the Buon Gusto property of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Gately said the council in 1972 erred in including the two properties, totaling an acre, in legislation intended to rezone only the Buon Gusto restaurant site.

The Fairfax Town Council also:

PUBLIC HEARINGS — Approved updated versions of the national electrical, housing, plumbing, building and dangerous building abatement codes.

APPLICANTS — Called for applicants representing Fairfax on the county Bicentennial Committee.

USE PERMITS — Put over a use permit application for a lot setback at 204 Hillside Drive, and approved a permit for a variance of carport standards at 15 Hill Avenue.

CLOSED SESSION — Said it will meet in closed session at 8 p.m. Thursday to interview two finalists for city planning consultant.

ADJOURNMENT — Set the next regular meeting for March 11 and adjourned to Thursday.

Hike Scheduled In Milk Prices

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Minimum consumer milk prices will be increased by one cent next week to 67 cents per half gallon in seven central coast counties.

The state Department of Food and Agriculture yesterday said the price rise will go into effect Sunday in Alameda, Contra Costa, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Monterey and San Francisco counties.

It said the increase, approved by the Cost of Living Council, is designed to offset higher costs of processing and distributing milk in the area.

"The way we were"

During 1973 our bank completed its 11th year. Bank of Marin opened its doors in November, 1962, with $1,500,000 in assets and 16 people. At the end of 1973, we exceeded $110,000,000 in assets and now have over 250 people serving our customers from eight banking offices.

For 1974, we have plans of further expansion...in February, our Sausalito Office will move to new and expanded quarters at 180 Harbor Drive. In March, we will open our 9th banking office, located in the Washington Square Shopping Center, Petaluma.

Yes, 1974 promises to be a year of exciting, innovative financial services for all our customers. The flexibility of independent banking, plus a creative staff, makes it possible for us to "blaze new trails" in the banking business. That's the "way we were" from 1962 to 1973 and the way we intend to be in the years to come.

Successful Author Finds A Dream Home In Sonoma

Marin Women

Tuesday, February 12, 1974 Independent-Journal, 13

By KAREN PETERSON
When author Zilpha Keatley Snyder and her husband, Larry, spied the towering Victorian mansion at the foot of the Sonoma Hills, they immediately knew that it would have to be their home.

It seems the Gables, an 1877 local Sonoma County landmark, was the picture of Westerly House, the country mansion in one of Mrs. Snyder's Newbery award novels, "The Headless Cupid."

"As soon as we walked in the front door, it seemed like we were destined to live here," said her husband, director of the Center for Performing Arts at Sonoma State College and former dean of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

"We knew exactly what the house would be like," they added. And they were right — the house had a double parlor, a creek and thistles in the yard, just like Westerly House.

The author of books for young people including "The Changeling" and "The Velvet Room", Mrs. Snyder enjoys these coincidences, and admits she's entranced by the supernatural.

"I LIKE a world that is not too confined in strict foundations," said the handsome woman in a parlor graced by the portrait of William and Mary Jane Roberts, the original owners of the Gables.

A former teacher, Mrs. Snyder published her first book 10 years ago while still living in Larkspur. Today she has authored 10 books — the eleventh is due for release this spring, and another is now in the making.

Hauntings, poltergeists, chants and other unearthly goings-on fill the pages of her later books.

"Children love to be frightened," she said, "as long as it doesn't hit home."

For giving children what they seem to like most, Mrs. Snyder has been the recipient of numerous literary honors, including the American Library Association's top award, the Christopher Award from Catholic educators and the George C. Stone Recommendation of Merit from Claremont Graduate School.

She also received the Hans Christian Andersen Award, an international honors list that every two years honors a body of work by a single author.

The National Organization for Women has also listed two of Mrs. Snyder's books on its list of novels that do not stereotype girls.

"I didn't do it purposely," admitted Mrs. Snyder who is only one of two authors listed for more than one book. "I've always felt that girls could do whatever they wanted."

Three of her books have won the prestigious Newbery honors: "The Headless Cupid," "The Egypt Game" and "The Witches of Worm."

THE FIRST tells the story of a young boy and his stepmother, who believes she is a witch. The "Witches of Worm" tells a tale of exorcising a cat possessed by Satan. The book, she added, was published at about the same time as the now-popular William Peter Blatty novel, "The Exorcist."

"The Egypt Game" is a mixture of truth and fiction, set in Berkeley, where Mrs. Snyder taught for three years, and overshadowed by a mysterious murder. The game was based on a game played by her daughter in the sixth grade, said Mrs. Snyder. My daughter and her friend went the whole way with costumes, rituals and hieroglyphics, she explained.

"The incense and candles intrigued me." Disney Productions offered to buy the book to make a movie, but Mrs. Snyder refused.

"They wouldn't use black children," she said.

Her books are a combination of people she has met and pure fantasy, but all of them are carefully researched for authenticity.

From a meeting with a little girl in Sausalito, Mrs. Snyder got the character in the "Headless Cupid."

"She was dressed in a long robe . . . and studying to be a witch," she recalled. "She was so fascinating . . . from this brief meeting grew a whole book."

She admits to never having a "shortage of ideas," but the plot, climax and resolution are sometimes tricky. "I spend 10 to 15 minutes staring out the window for each word printed," she said.

The exorcism chant in the "Witches of Worm" was taken from a very old book, she said, and the story was based on one 12-year-old girl's crusade in Salem, Mass., that rounded up 20 supposed witches.

"I wondered what a modern day child would use in the way (that the other girl) used the theology of her day."

She decided that it would be supernatural power.

Mrs. Snyder's books are a reflection of her own wild imagination, and therefore she keeps the endings open for speculation.

"I leave the endings sort of open," she explained. "I hate having children say 'What really happened?' I answer by saying even if I knew I wouldn't tell you."

YET MRS. Snyder tried not to let her own feelings creep into her stories. This is almost impossible, she admitted, and her husband adds that she "has a thing about violence and a non-violent society — learning to solve problems by non-violent means."

The book she is working on now may have a touch of that philosophy.

"It's a science fiction," she said, "but it has nothing to do with science. It's a different world entirely . . . a world inhabited by what will probably be refugees from earth."

Writing is a natural vocation for Mrs. Snyder.

"I was always reading and making up stories," she said of her childhood, "and I got scolded for throwing in details."

"My mother would say just tell it, don't embroider it," she added, "Now I tell her my career is embroidering."

DESIGN FOR PEOPLE

A Canopy Can Give Status To Furniture

By EMILY MALINO
Distributed by United Feature Syndicate

In the old days when a king wanted to be recognized, he hung a canopy over his chair, which then became his throne. The canopy made this throne a focal point in what then became the throne-room, adding to the stature and importance of the king and his chair.

The same basic idea can easily be adapted to the modern home. In a living room, for example, where there is no real "place" for a game or dining table, a contemporary canopy can give the same sense of stature and place to your furniture.

Canopy is a loose term. It can be almost anything that hangs lower than the ceiling. A piece of plywood, framed at the edges like a large, inverted, shallow tray can make a super canopy, painted a different color from the ceiling, or patterned with polka dots or stars or clouds.

THE SAME effect can be duplicated with a piece of bright canvas stretched on a frame and hung from the ceiling, or, perhaps, a lightweight rug or tapestry or weaving.

But a canopy can also be a

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Twin Not Happy That Mother Dresses Her And Sister Alike

RAP: My sister and I are identical twins. Mom thinks it looks cute, us dressing alike. The trouble is our tastes in clothes are worlds apart.

Mom settled it by letting me choose what my twin and I wear Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and letting my sister choose our Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday outfits. She chooses what we wear on Sunday.

I think I am old enough to wear what I want, when I want, but how do you get a twin-happy mother to listen? — STUCK IN UNIFORM

DEAR STUCK: Someone should tell your mother:

1. Twins are separate identities and should not be treated as one person, doubled. 2. Mama is bucking for rebellion if she continues the cutesy approach. 3. Children forced into the look-alike, think-alike mold not only become resentful of the parent who forces, but of each other. We all need to feel unique, twins more than most because their individualities are so often threatened. — HELEN

DEAR STUCK: And now that someone has told your mother, let's hope she does further study on raising twins. She should be glad you want to be whole persons, not merely two halves of a set. — SUE

DEAR RAP: My girl takes The Pill, but only for acne. Would you believe, we aren't even tempted. Well, not tempted enough to get something going we aren't ready for.

Quick-Cut Casual!

PRINTED PATTERN

4648
SIZES 8-20

by Anne Adams

Quick-cut casual gets you right into the spring fashion picture. No waist seam — this soft, easy shaping is a snap to whip up in "thin" jersey.

Printed Pattern 4648: Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20. Size 12 (bust 34) takes 2½ yards 45-inch fabric.

Send $1 for each pattern. Add 25 cents for each pattern for first-class mail and special handling. Send to Anne Adams c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Print Name, Address, Zip, Size and Style Number.

My question is, would the pill help acne in a guy? I'd sure take it if I thought my pimples would go away. — BILL

P.S. Does sex cure acne? BILL: Neither female hormones nor sex will cure acne in a guy, and both could cause complications, but in different ways.

A dermatologist can prescribe antibiotics and other treatments that might help your skin condition. Meanwhile, wash regularly and often with medicated soap, develop healthy exercise, food and sleep habits, sun bathe when you can, and hope nature stops messing around with you soon. — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE: I'm 17, going out with a girl 15. We decided to drive around a while before I brought her home from school. Two hours, but it didn't seem that long.

The next day when I called, her mother really chewed me out. She said her daughter told her I wouldn't let her out of the car. So now she won't let us see each other. The truth is my girl said she didn't need to be home right away.

We love each other a lot. How can we get back together again? — C.F.

DEAR C.F.: Maybe it was more a misunderstanding than a lie — mothers often assume the boy is to blame, even if the girl stands up for him. If your girlfriend really cares about you, she'll smooth things over, once the mother simmers down. (And mothers usually do.) — SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel — or both, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

IMPROVE YOUR BEAUTY

Know Right Weight To Weigh Right

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate
(Second in a series)

Well, we survived in one piece but not in the same shape. Most of us picked up a few pounds during the holidays. If this has happened to you, or if you have some overweight pounds, now is the perfect time to lose them.

This is the second day of my eight week Beauty Improvement Plan (Bip).

If you need to do so, you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks. If you ought to lose more, this course will give you a big send-off and know-how. If you do not need to lose pounds, you can improve your posture, bring your measurements into more perfect ratio and make your complexion and hair much prettier. Most of the women who follow this plan wish to lose weight.

THE FIRST thing to do is to discover what your ideal weight is. It is important to know what goal you are shooting for and how many pounds you must lose to reach it. Your ideal weight depends on your height and the size of your bones and also on how well developed your muscles are.

It is difficult for a woman to decide what type frame she has. Here are a few guidelines. If your shoulders are broad and your pelvic bones widely separated, and your ankle and wrist bones are big, then you probably have a large frame. If your bones are very delicate your frame is likely to be small. Anything in between is medium.

Do not be fooled by height. A short person can have heavy bones and a tall one can have delicate ones.

LOOK AT the height and weight chart in the illustration and decide what your weight should be, taking your skeleton into consideration. If the result is out of the question then you have made a mistake about the type build you have. Remember two things. From the age of 25 on your ideal weight remains the same. Also, if your muscles are unusually well developed you can weigh a few pounds more without being overweight.

Spring Fabrics

Fabrics for spring come from familiar families — linen, ticking, denim, silk and silk-like synthetics including crepe de chine, surah, cotton knits, tweeds and a big hit in the synthetics — Ultrasuede which looks like the real thing.

Over this attractive assemblage, I hung 10 Japanese rice-paper lanterns in a thick clump from hooks in the ceiling, using 25-watt bulbs for a combined light bright enough to give good illumination for dining or games.

Though the lanterns are white, any ordinary clear light bulb of all one color like red, for instance, could be used to convert the lanterns into a rosy place to match a festive mood.

LANTERNS are only one of many possible clusters. I saw a gorgeous canopy of Japanese paper butterfly kites hung thickly together with just one spotlight above them to illuminate their fiery color. The slightest draft from a nearby window or door set them into a delicate flutter making them a living world all their own.

In the same way mylar or mirrored squares or dots on transparent fishing line would create a special glitter and sparkle to match your best crystal or silver.

In my room I used silvered miniblinds with narrow slats of aluminum to reflect the lanterns and the plants growing densely in front of the generous window, extending the feeling of place and space to this canopied corner.

CANOPY

Continued from page 13 dense cluster of something; I designed a one-room apartment where there was no dining area at all. The table was a handsome butcher-block top on a thick white pedestal and the chairs were elegant and comfortable enough to be added to the seating group for guests as needed.

They'd Rather Act Out An Interview Than Talk

By JEFF GREER

Purgatory is when a city editor assigns a reporter — who lives and dies by words — to interview the world's only husband and wife mime team.

Robert Shields and Lorene Yarnell, as his wife is known onstage, sometimes can go for days without having to speak to each other — much less some hapless reporter.

The Mill Valley couple had an almost silent courtship. Even their wedding, two years ago last October, was in mime.

After all, they communicate so deftly and so convincingly with their faces, hands and slim 22-year-old bodies that anyone who can see must understand.

But they can talk, too, to those unfortunates who lack the wizardry of the wordless.

Shields and Yarnell said yesterday they will be performing their mime acts twice tomorrow in the Marin Veterans Memorial Building — in the morning for almost 2,000 Marin County schoolchildren and at 8 p.m. in a benefit performance before grownups who probably will find themselves back in magic childhood days, when the mimes stand in the spotlight.

The Shields-Yarnell performance in the evening will benefit the Youth in Arts program in the county's schools.

Shields gave fascinated Independent-Journal newsmen staffers a tantalizing preview of part of the show, of his role in a mime duet telling of the romance of two robots.

"The slender, handsome youth dressed in bright-colored mod clothes — suddenly became a machine."

He ... moved ... with such angularity ... and perceptible ... pauses ... that hushed onlookers thought they could hear relays clicking and gears whirring.

Shields ended by bowing stiffly from the waist, leaning so far forward it seemed as if he'd clatter onto the floor.

"In the story, one robot winds down while the other one winds up," Shields said. "The routine was written before a mirror — it takes months for each new routine," and was composed as carefully as a choreographer creates a dance, he said.

SILENT SHOW — Robert Shields, the mime whose career began on the streets of San Francisco and has since carried him to European triumphs and television appearances, strikes one of the attitudes that help tell a story without words. He and his wife, Lorene Yarnell, a fellow mime, will present two performances tomorrow in Marin.

"We're not the old traditional mime," said Lorene. "If Marcel Marceau (world-famed French mime) is the classic ballet form," Shields took up the thread, "we are the Afro-Jazz."

Shields and his partner met onstage for a television show; she was a dancer and had a number of stage, film and television speaking roles in her credits.

"When I first met him, I don't think he said anything for hours," Lorene recalled. "We still go on days when we do nothing but mime to each other." "Now I like mime extremely better" than speaking roles, Lorene said. She is probably the only woman mime headliner in more than 100 years, her husband proudly added.

The white makeup with exaggerated brows, painted lips and other features goes back to Grecian and Roman times, but has its use as well as tradition, the two stressed.

"The facial expressions are very important — in makeup, everyone in the audience can see them," Shields explained.

The silent husband-wife team recently completed roles in a film, "Conversations." They now are planning to repeat their previous tours of Australia and Europe, performing mainly on stage.

It takes each of them about 40 minutes to paint on the stark white makeup, and about 90 minutes of warmup exercises before each performance. They rehearse about five hours daily between shows.

"We always do our television interviews in mime, with make-up," Mrs. Shields said. "We never talk."

"The host can become very nervous" trying to interview the silent duo; "it usually is very funny."

She stood up rigidly, arms frozen to her sides. "Mike Douglas was like this" after the last interview, she said.

"Silence is golden," she concluded. Shields said nothing ...

ART REVIEW

Outstanding Designs, Work Found At Metal, Fiber Show

By ADA GARFINKEL

Strikingly innovative jewelry designs and exquisite workmanship dominate the invitational "Metal and Fiber Show" now on display in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Gallery.

The most daring and inspired works are the large, sculptural body-pieces of jewelry by William Clark. Made of polished brass in the shape of horned and spiral antlers, some are designed to fit the head, and others to rest on the shoulders. "Dance Wand," also made of brass, suggests the ceremonial usage of the antlers.

Among Clark's smaller and equally intriguing pieces is a silver "Fish Necklace" with real sardines packed into a clear plastic tubular form, and a rosewood-and-brass "Breastplate" necklace with microscopic breast shapes carved into a glowing lucite rectangle.

Magical necklaces by Leslie Correll with poetical titles such as "Sun Feathers, Moon Feathers," and "In the Power of the Circle" — the latter in three units — were created from African, Dutch, and pre-Columbian beads, and brass, bone, buttons, porcupine quills, and hand-woven textiles collected from other parts of the world.

Unusual choker-type necklaces by Arlene Fisch are of woven, and ring-knitted fine silver wire. Parrot feathers are part of "Feather Lady," a brooch in silver and plastic enamel.

Serimshaw engraving is used by Marianne Fletcher on miniature reliquary boxes of rosewood, ivory, and snakewood, and "Creatures of Mythology" — from a chimera to a unicorn — are the subjects of 12 miniature silver sculptures on walnut bases by Jacqueline Campbell. "Fibula" pins — so called because their shape resembles the fibula bone — by Robert Jefferson, are impressive "charm" pieces made of rutinated quartz, pearls, silver and gold.

Electroplated bowls — one with pleats and folds — in iridescent colors, by June Schwarcz, are among the more unusual metallic entries.

Weinberger Reports On Big Tooth Decay Attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fluoridation, an issue that provoked bitter protest in the 1960s when it involved community water supplies, is proceeding quietly with hundreds of rural school water supplies, according to the Department of Health Education and Welfare.

"We are studying everything from the effects of sugar to the use of sealants (for teeth) and the fluoridation of school water supplies," HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told the Chicago Dental Society last night.

He said HEW's National Institute of Dental Research is directing an $8.9 million effort, which included fluoridation, to prevent tooth decay.

"The Institute staff has coordinated the talents of dental scientists throughout the nation, through grants and contracts, in a concerted organized strategy to attack dental caries (cavities) a problem which affects virtually every American," Weinberger said. The fluoridation of community water supplies in the 1960's was often met by charges, sometimes from organized groups, of "Communist plots" and mass medication.

The fluoridation of the water supplies of rural schools, generally with even heavier concentration of the chemical than in community water supplies because of the short periods children are in schools, is proceeding without protest, said Dr. Herschel S. Horowitz, chief of the Institute's Community Programs section. In part, this is because scientist bypassed individual parents in seeking approval and took their case to state and local health and school authorities.

"If one parent said no, that would kill the project," he said. "The tack taken has been that this is a health matter than can be decided by health authorities and school officials."

He estimated that the water supplies of some 200 rural schools have been fluoridated in the last five years in response to HEW's research.

Deputy Doesn't Ask For A Push HOUSTON (UPI) — A vehicle carrying 17 persons ran out of gasoline on U.S. 59 yesterday but nobody got out to push.

The passengers were prisoners being carried in a paddy wagon from the downtown jail to the county rehabilitation center.

The deputy driving called for assistance.

The South Carolina Republican listed the end of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, the ending of the draft and detente with the Soviet Union as chief accomplishments of the President.

A Sensible Plan For Boys' Club Here

Plans for a Central Marin Boys' Club have been revived, with an assist from some of those responsible for a successful Boys' Club fund-raising campaign in Novato.

The push for a Boys' Club to serve San Rafael and its environs was started several years ago by Jack MacPhee, who had found through his own Mar-Vel Athletic Club the appeal of gymnastic and athletic participation to many "lost" boys. It appeared on the way to fruition a couple of years ago when a fund-raising campaign was launched.

That campaign, however, hardly got off the ways. Its failure probably can be laid to the fact that its aim was too high. The promoters envisioned a half-million-dollar clubhouse and an Olympic-sized swimming pool. It was just too much.

THIS TIME the promoters — who include holdover directors from the earlier effort — have set their sights much more realistically.

Instead of "pie in the sky," they are after a Boys' Club program that can grow from small beginnings. They don't plan a building fund campaign. They are going after a much smaller "kitty" to hire a director, rent some vacant building, and start a Boys' Club program which can then grow and expand. If it proves its worth, they figure, chances will be far better to raise money for a clubhouse (without Olympic-sized swimming pool).

THE FIRST reaction to any such proposal is likely to be:

What do we need with a Boys' Club? We have Boy Scouts, YMCA, city recreation programs, Little League, Pony League, Pop Warner League — you name it. Our kids are "organized to death."

That is just the trouble. They are "organized to death." And like many of their elders, many youngsters resent being organized.

Boys' Clubs, set up under Boys' Clubs of America auspices, are very loose organizations. A boy pays a fee of $2 and for it can use the club's facilities any time all year. The clubrooms or clubhouse are kept open every afternoon and evening, and on week ends. He can always go there and find something to do. And he goes by his own choice and when he feels like it. Nobody gives him a demerit for non-appearance. Nobody jumps on him because his bat, or ball, or glove is "not official." And nobody makes him buy a uniform.

THAT IS part of the reason why all the existing boys' organizations in Marin — useful though they are — do not reach anywhere near all the boys. Boys' Club proponents claim the very youngsters who are "turned off" by Scouts or Little League or YMCA are reached by Boys' Clubs. And experience in city after city across the nation indicates they are right.

We wish Joseph A. Gereghy, Chester R. MacPhee, Jack MacPhee and all the others who are attempting to revive Boys' Club interest in Central Marin the best of success. Their present plan sounds sensible. It deserves support.

Day Care For Elderly

One of the tragedies of today's American society is the short shrift given the elderly. If they develop a disability or show signs of senility, all too often they are carted off to a nursing home to spend their declining years, in the care of none-too-interested strangers, stripped of their individuality and pride.

This is not to condemn anyone. We know there are some good nursing homes in Marin. But many of the people in them now could be cared for less expensively and more humanely if we had day care centers, such as are common in Sweden and England. More exercise and recreation, and fewer tranquilizers.

Veto Override Serves To End Dangerous Myth

By EARL G. WATERS

Gov. Ronald Reagan was 100 per cent right when he dismissed as "unimportant" the first override of a governor's veto in 28 years.

The real significance of the override was the breaking of the ice on a false and dangerous myth which has served to protect a governor from legislative overrides of vetoes for more than a quarter century.

The myth has been that to override a veto would be of great embarrassment to a governor, that it would hold him up to the public as having made a mistake. This one-sided view suggests that 120 members of the legislature are capable of making mistakes while the wisdom of one man is so omnipotent that he cannot.

SUCH REASONING is not only false but potentially most dangerous to our form of government.

For a governor to countermand the decisions of the legislature without fear or being overridden conveys power not intended in the constitution and ultimately destroys the value of the separation of powers between legislative and executive branches.

"The weakening of the legislative arm leads to an encroachment by the executive upon the legislative and judicial functions, and inevitably that encroachment is upon individual liberty. If we examine the wrecked republics over the world we shall find first a weakening of the legislative arm." That was said by Herbert Hoover.

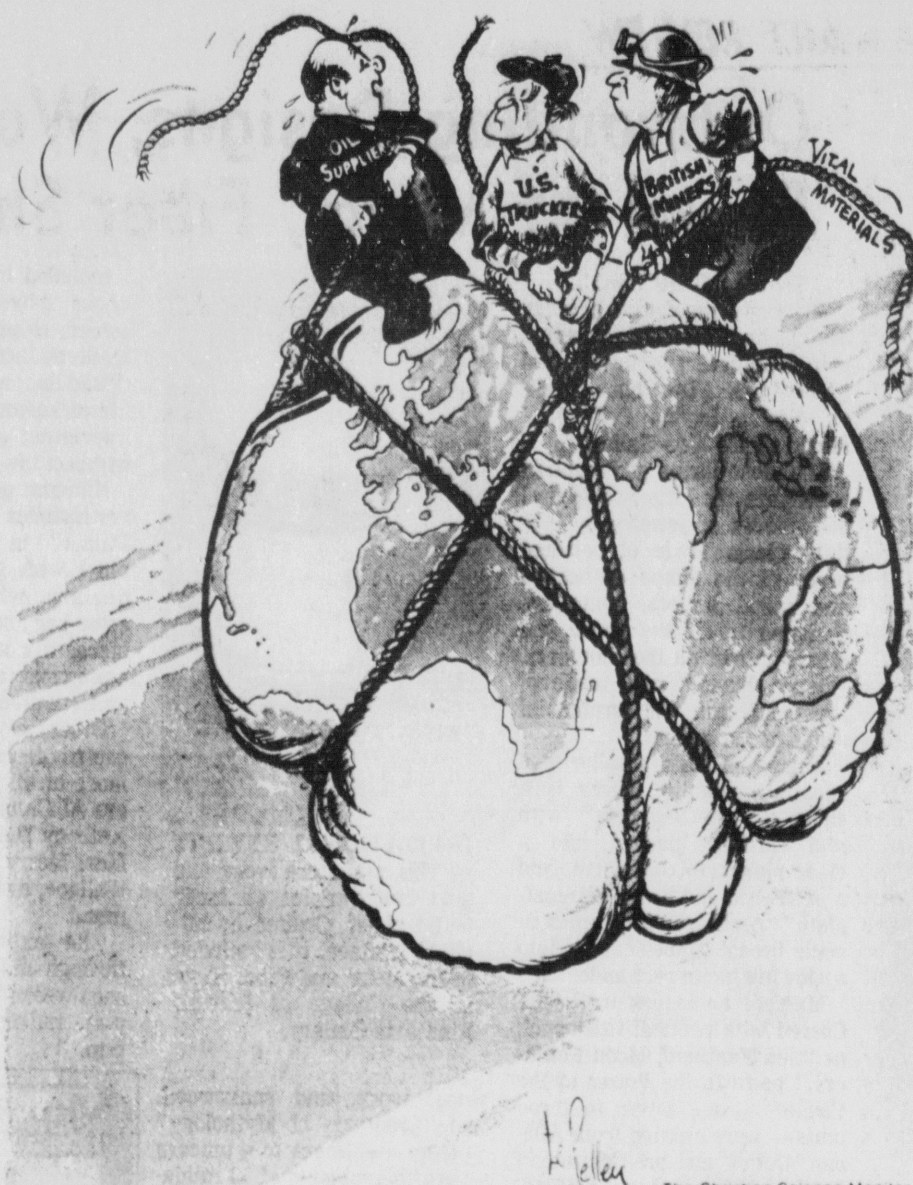

It is unfortunate that things have been allowed to drift along for so many years that governor's have come to view an override as a personal affront. Actually, legislative rejection of vetoes should be no more traumatic than the passing of bills. This is the situation in Congress. An override there does not occasion front-page headlines, nor is it always a partisan matter. It is an assertion by Congress of its authority.

IT WAS THIS very point which prompted the late state Sen. George Miller Jr. to engineer override of a veto by Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight in a Republican-dominated state Senate in 1957. The vote was 39 to 1, and having made his point Miller did not pursue it in the Assembly for the vetoed bill was relatively unimportant.

As Miller told the senate: "The veto power is not one to be used whimsically, capriciously or for the purpose of political retaliation. An abusive use of the veto, if permitted to stand, is a blow to the power and authority of the legislature to determine policy for the executive branch."

He then quoted President Harrison: "The president does not deal with bills submitted for his approval upon the principle that he should approve only such bills as he would have voted for had he been a member of Congress."

It is to be hoped that now that the dam has been broken on overrides, there will be no flood. But it also is to be hoped that future overrides will occur and not be based upon showing who is boss but rather on the merits of the issue involved.

Crossword Puzzle Missed By Seniors

Between the dark and the daylight, When the night is beginning to lower, Comes a pause in the day's occupations That is known as the seniors' hour. (With apologies to Longfellow.)

That is the hour between arrival of I-J and preparation for dinner. It's crossword time for seniors. There was waster-nation Saturday (Feb. 2) when I-J arrived and no puzzle. Friends phoned, "Did you find the puzzle in your paper?" "No," sez I, "a letter should be written," and here it is.

Please, Mr. Editor, if possible, may we have our puzzle on Saturday as well as during the week?

Marin Deserves Better Local Public Transit

Mr. Harrison of the Marin County Transit District has stated that unless that property and the Golden Gate Bridge District can settle their differences, local bus service will be cut as much as 60 per cent by September. I view this with great trepidation as a student not yet able to drive, and daily riding both local and trans bay lines to and from school.

True, the state legislature authorized the bridge district to provide service to the "Golden Gate Corridor." But what does this catchy name entail? Does it mean that just because a passenger does not cross the bridge, he is not traveling in the "corridor"? By demanding additional subsidies from the county, the bridge district is following the letter and not the spirit of the law.

As to the future plans of the county transit district, an integrated local and commute system, as operated at present, would be most efficient. With an independent local system, the present transferring privileges would be lost, and overlapping of routes would most likely occur. If the proposed property tax raise is approved, however, monies should go to new rolling stock and service, not to pay an alleged debt to the bridge district.

Marin County has always been apathetic toward public mass transit, but now that gas approaches 55 cents per gallon with long lines to get at it, perhaps a few more drummers will join the band. Residents need a good, efficient system of transport to keep our streets unclogged, our air clean and fuel available. So far, Marin hasn't been getting what it deserves.

How Energy Crisis Saved Marriage For The Pettigrews

WASHINGTON — I dropped over to Pettigrew's house at 6 o'clock the other night, and, much to my surprise, I found him setting the table.

"Pettigrew," I said in astonishment, "what on earth are you doing?" "I'm setting the table." "But that's women's work." "You're wrong," he said. "Clara and I have worked out a new arrangement which I must admit was brought about by Women's Lib."

"WHAT DO YOU mean?" "We've divided the duties at home. I now set the table."

"What does she do?" "She finds gas for the car." "You've got to be kidding." "I'm not kidding. As you recall," he said, mixing us drinks, "Clara's been very unhappy for the past year. The children are in school, and she was complaining bitterly that she didn't have enough to do and that she found herself unfulfilled. I must admit it was a tough time for us."

"But then the energy crisis happened and I said to her, 'You've been wanting to do something with your life to prove you are your own person. Why don't you go out and find some gas?'"

"AT FIRST she thought she was unqualified to do something as complicated as that, but I persuaded her that she could do anything she set her mind to. After all, she had four years of college and had worked before she got married. I assured her after a few weeks she would get the hang of finding gasoline. Then instead of just being Mrs. Irving Pettigrew, wife of the vice president of the No-Fault Insurance Co. she would become Clara Pettigrew whose profession was finding petrol for our car."

"And she agreed to do it?"

"Yes, she did. At first it was rather tough. She would come home with a quarter-tank or a half-tank or sometimes $1.50 worth and she was very discouraged. But I never criticized her, because I knew she needed building up. I said, 'Clara, for a beginner you're doing swell. I know some wives who have been at it twice as long as you have and sometimes they don't even come home with a dollar's worth of gas a day. Tomorrow you go out real early, like say 7 o'clock, and get a good spot in line and you should be able to get the tank filled by 3 in the afternoon.'"

"AND DID SHE GET the tank filled?" "Not exactly. By the time she got to the pump, they had run out. But she did manage to buy four gallons in Rockville at 6 that night, so the day wasn't a complete loss."

"I must say," I said, as Pettigrew mixed me another drink, "I never thought Clara could go back to work after all those years as a housewife." "I'm very proud of her. She takes getting gas for us very seriously. Many mornings she's gone before I wake up and arrives home after I've taken my shower in the evening. She's got every gas station in town pinpointed, and she methodically goes from one to another — a dollar's worth here and a dollar's worth there. I tell you, when I see the look of satisfaction on her face in the evening after she has managed to get almost a full tank, I don't mind pitching in and setting the table at all."

"AND IT'S SAVED your marriage?" "I've never seen Clara happier. She feels for the first time she's needed and she finally has a challenge worthy of her talent. In the evenings we have something to talk about together, and the beauty of it is that she gets the tank filled on her own. No one even knows she's Mrs. Irving Pettigrew."

"I'm happy for both of you. Where's Clara now?"

"She's in line at an Amoco station in Gaithersburg, and just called to say she'd be a little late for dinner."

Western World In Disarray While Communists Keep Order

Not in a very long time has there been such an appearance of disorder and weakness in the free-enterprise countries nor a more disturbing contrast to the appearance of order in the Communist countries.

The western scene is dominated by rampant inflation everywhere, a truckers' strike in the United States, a three-day work week and a general election imposed by public dissatisfaction in Britain. The ability of the NATO allies to work together has been damaged by an unseemly scramble for oil. The search for common monetary and trade policies has been largely abandoned. Every man for himself seems to be the order of the day.

BY CONTRAST, the only news coming out of the Soviet Union these days is of the embarrassment of the government over its Sakharov-Solzhnitsyn problem. It does not quite dare (so far) to arrest or exile to Siberian prison camps two men whose work is famous the world around. But it would obviously like to do to them what would be done to any ordinary citizen who dared to speak his own mind as freely.

There is no visible inflation, no visible unemployment, no strike, no work stoppage in any country in Moscow's orbit.

Below the surface, of course, the contrast is just the opposite. Western economies are more productive than Communist economies in spite of inflation, strikes and some unemployment.

Western disunity is not as bad as it seems to be on the surface. The major oil-consuming countries are coming together in Washington, and there is a fair possibility that they will be able to coordinate their behavior towards the oil producers of the Middle East to begin to bring down the exorbitant price of oil.

And below the surface, every one of Moscow's satellites would break away if it dared.

EVEN ON THE SURFACE the once seamless cloak of communism has been torn asunder by the jealousies and rivalries and mutual distrusts of China and the Soviet Union. There are still some half a million Russian soldiers deployed along China's mid-Asian frontier. And Chinese nuclear missiles are targeted on Russian cities.

In China itself, the past week has seen the official announcement of a second round of Mao Tse-tung's "cultural revolution." The first round brought the country to a halt economically and politically for four years. What will the new round do?

But on the surface these days there is a contrast which should prompt every great western statesman and politician to greater effort. President Nixon's "Year of Europe" is already more than a year behind schedule. Never was western disarray worse than over oil. And the plain fact is that not one of the private enterprise countries seems to know any longer how to prevent or control inflation.

REPUTABLE AND SERIOUS economists in the United States and Britain are wondering whether a political democracy can manage inflation. To check an inflation once it has broken through the 10 per cent level requires a degree of political courage and strength which no western country seems any longer to possess.

In the United States, President Nixon's new budget is aimed at preventing unemployment, but not at checking inflation. It was called "conservative" in most of the reviews and critiques, but it is not the kind of conservatism which Dwight D. Eisenhower would have recognized. "Ike" balanced his budgets (or nearly balanced them) and kept the dollar stable. Mr. Nixon's cumulative budget deficits are now in the $80-billion range. The idea of balancing the budget is so out of fashion now that Mr. Nixon's projection of another deficit of some $10 billion is called "conservative."

By old-style western definitions, Moscow runs a more conservative system than does Washington. Shortages do not cause inflation; they just cause shortages. There is a black market, of course, which helps to keep the economy lubricated. The Soviet system probably would break down entirely without the black markets. But — on the surface — the Soviet world is where one must go today to see "law and order." The price is another matter. But on the surface — it is very peaceful.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Where Would We Be If It Were Not For Henry Kissinger?

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger is like a man crossing Niagara Falls on a high wire. From either bank his enemies are throwing everything from dead cats and rotten apples to old shoes at this 'onely figure balanced precariously over the abyss.

Jealousy, resentment, old grudges, just plain hatred; these are some of the motives of those who would like to bring him down. To this must be added a kind of death wish to see the whole Nixon show collapse. His enemies realize as well as his loyal friends that he is almost the only strong point still remaining.

THE SUSPICION is current that the German mafia, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, with their allies in the Plumbers' unit, are feeding out the whispered accusations.

They themselves have fallen and may be on the way to prison while this alien, this outsider, not only survives but has achieved for his diplomatic triumphs the stature of hero. This is enough to set them intriguing for revenge.

There is nothing new in the thirst for revenge nor in the intrigues. The difference is that the insiders are now on the outside with their desire to get even greater than ever. How much harm they can do, how much they can bring to the surface that will seem injurious, is unknown.

Kissinger's survival for five years in the Byzantine intrigues of the White House is in itself a small miracle. The atmosphere was a cross between Kafka and Little Orphan Annie with a pious facade out of J. Walter Thompson and the blessing of Billy Graham.

THE IMPOSSIBLE the secretary of state contemplates as he balances on the high wire are a catalogue of ifs, maybes and buts.

If the Syrians can be persuaded to disengage and return their Israeli prisoners, then the Middle East conference at Geneva will at least get off the ground. What happens after the conferees sit down around the table, not even the boldest prophet would say. There are plenty of gloomsters predicting total deadlock.

The oil embargo may be lifted, but if this happens what about the doubling and tripling of the price? Kissinger believes this is a more serious issue than the embargo.

Forced to pay these prices the developing nations will be pushed over the economic brink, possibly triggering a worldwide depression.

The biggest "if" of all is whether the detente with the Soviet Union will hold and whether within that framework a SALT II agreement limiting offensive nuclear weapons can be negotiated.

So Kissinger is going to Moscow next month to prepare the way or President Nixon's meeting with Party Sec. Leonid I. Brezhnev in June.

FOR THE LONG TERM the outcome turns on Congress and public opinion, with increasing evidence of a new isolationism. If the framework of detente falls, a great deal falls with it, at a cost that generations still to come may be paying. This is inherent in the threat of a new nuclear arms race.

In a despondent moment Kissinger once remarked that the American people behave as though they had won the grand prize in the international lottery and could do whatever they wanted to.

These are a few of the burdens the high-wire artist carries. He flies to Panama in the morning, to give the possible new settlement of the dispute over the Panama Canal a shove, and back that night.

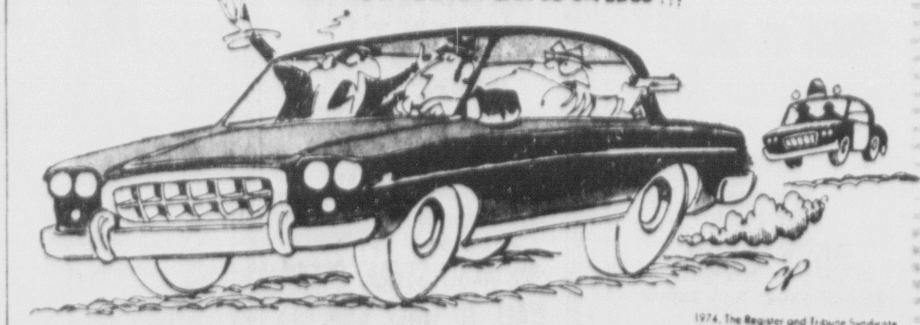

Yes, his detractors say, but he loves power. He has a giant-size ego that must be constantly massaged. Working for him is like pulling the chariot of a Roman emperor in a triumphal procession.

I say, what of it? This man who has proved such a consummate diplomat, deserves some compensation. Certainly he has made errors, errors of judgment, errors of human misunderstanding — as who has not. But, when that is said, ask one question: Where would we be if it were not for Kissinger?

Familiar Contest In Novato: 'Environmentalists Vs. Business'

The political winds are blowing in Novato, but only the voters know in which direction. With the city council election three weeks away, it is the season for doorbell ringing, coffee, handshaking, and meet-the-candidates meetings.

Congress' Marks Not Too Good

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only 21 per cent of the people believe Congress is doing a good job, according to a Louis Harris poll released yesterday.

The approval rating was even lower than that given to President Nixon in an earlier poll.

The poll also showed the public gave Congress even lower ratings on its handling of specific issues, including the Watergate case and impeachment proceedings against Nixon.

"Public confidence in the federal establishment thus has touched bottom," said Harris.

In questions asked Jan. 18-22 of a cross section of 1,594 households, 69 per cent of those polled gave Congress a negative rating while only 21 per cent approved of the job it's doing.

This compared to a rating for the President of 68 per cent negative and 30 per cent positive.

On specific questions, the poll showed disapproval of Congress on Watergate at 72 per cent, compared to 19 per cent approval; on keeping the economy healthy, 80 per cent disapproval, 13 per cent approval; on handling impeachment proceedings, 71 per cent to 11 per cent.

On other issues, Congress received 79 per cent disapproval on its handling of relations with President Nixon, compared to 11 per cent approval; on handling the energy shortage, 82 per cent to 10 per cent; on keeping spending under control, 83 per cent to 10 per cent, and on controlling inflation, 88 per cent to 6 per cent.

President Nixon also received decisively negative ratings on similar issues, although his ratings consistently were somewhat higher than those of Congress.

The field is smaller than usual, four candidates for two seats, but some view the outcome as crucial to the city's future.

CANDIDATE Gail M. Wilhelm in her brochure said, "The election will determine whether real estate and development interests will take priority over community interests."

The pendulum has been swinging between what have been loosely defined as the "business" and "environmentalist" interests in the past two elections.

F. Wayne Sartain and George C. Quesada were elected in 1970, succeeding "business minded incumbents. Then in 1972, the voters switched back to "business" candidates, Dorothy P. Young and Fred F. Ruegg.

Furing the past two years, the council has split 3-2 on several key issues, so the direction can be switched by a change in one seat.

Sartain is seeking reelection, but Quesada isn't running, assuring at least one change.

IN THE EARLY stages of the campaign, candidate David E. Milano, supported by businessmen, has pegged growth as the prime issue and has advocated "balanced and reasonable growth."

Candidate Edward Brooks has made an issue of "the lack of leadership and responsiveness to citizens," and has asserted that the city's attitude has discouraged business from locating in Novato.

Sartain, running on his record as mayor and councilman, has stressed putting the Novato General Plan into effect, with emphasis on the growth control policy.

With more yet to come, the Novato voters will have many issues to consider by March 5.

ONE ISSUE touched upon lightly thus far is the departure of three department heads in the past year, police, public works and parks and recreation, and the resignation of City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

The first problem apparently will be to overcome voter apathy, which usually accompanies city elections.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

U.S.-Held Canal Zone Red Flag To Panamanians

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

To Panamanians, the contrast between the trimmed green lawns of the "zone" and the shanties just across Fourth of July Avenue in Panama City is of greater importance than the strategic value of the Panama canal.

Almost from the moment of the signing of the treaty in 1903 giving the United States control of the 550-mile Canal Zone "in perpetuity," it has stood as a symbol of Yankee imperialism.

It is the red flag which the Communists and other extreme leftists have waved in the face of Panamanians when they wish to arouse violence against the United States. One such incident in 1964 cost 25 lives.

UPON THIS SINGLE issue Panamanian politicians have risen to power, and it could be a reason now why the Panamanian strongman, Brig. Gen. Omar Torrijos Herrera, might decide to delay still further agreement on a new treaty replacing the one of 1903. It would rob him of an issue.

Beyond the emotional issue which the canal arouses among Panamanians is another of straight dollars and cents.

Panama accuses the United States of refusal to share in canal profits. Among older Panamanians are memories of gold and silver payoffs, the gold for Americans and the silver for Panamanians, both black and white.

IN PANAMA, on Feb. 7, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Panamanian Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack signed a statement of principles which on its face would seem to pave the way to a new era of good will between the United States and the tiny isthmus republic.

It would eliminate the concept of perpetuity and have a fixed termination date. It would give Panama a "just and equitable" share in benefits from the canal and it would grant to Panama a share both in the management and defense of the canal.

There are obvious stumbling blocks.

One such, upon termination of the treaty, would grant to the United States the "rights necessary to regulate the transit of ships through the canal, to operate, maintain, protect and defend the canal, and to undertake any other specific activity related to those ends as may be agreed upon in the treaty."

ON SPECIFIC ISSUES, the United States would return the canal to Panama 50 years after the entry into force of a new treaty. If a new sea-level canal is built, the United States wants to operate it for the next 40 years. Panama wants an overall treaty ending in 1994.

The United States is willing to increase its annual payments from $2 million to $25 million. Panama wants at least $75 million.

Sausalitans To Quiz Candidates

Nine candidates for two seats on the Sausalito City Council in the March 5 election have been invited to speak at a political meeting sponsored by the Sausalito Citizens Council at 7:45 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium of Central School, according to president Alfred Harlem.

An open time for questions from the audience will follow candidates' response to five questions being posed by the citizens council. They are:

1. Which of the following should be included, excluded or predominant in the development of the waterfront north of Johnson Street: tourism, commercial, residential or publicly owned open space?
2. If elected, would you feel obligated to follow residents' views as expressed by their vote at city elections or city-wide resident polls?
3. Would including a low-cost housing element in the city general plan be inconsistent with the very high cost of land, building and rents in Sausalito? If included, how would you propose to equitably fund the project?
4. Do you think the large expense in maintaining the option to buy Central School warrants the use of a quicker financing method? What would you suggest? (The present city council recently voted to buy Central School with surplus city funds.)
5. State your views on whether it would be prudent to commit the city tax rate to pay for a particular one of the following areas of large expense without considering the ability and desire of the tax payers to fund others: open space acquisition; Central School acquisition; new library building; Bridgeway improvements; sanitary district improvements; new school construction.

Candidates are incumbents Earl F. Dunphy and Stephen A. Fraser and challengers Charles Peet, William Hanna, Leonard Rappa, David Lent, Violeta Autumn, W. Daniel O'Connor and Serge Trubach.

Agnew Attorneys Seeking 'John Doe' Treatment

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — The Maryland court which is considering disciplinary action against lawyer Spiro Agnew has been asked to treat the former vice president "like John Doe" instead of a man subjected to "perhaps the most intense media attention in recent history."

Attorneys Leon H. A. Pierson and E. Dale Adkins Jr. filed a 20-page brief of exceptions with the state Court of Appeals yesterday, urging that Agnew be suspended from the practice of law rather than permanently expelled.

The panel had called Agnew's conduct "deceitful and dishonest" and "prejudicial to the administration of justice." It termed Agnew "unfit to continue as a member of the bar..."

"This respondent (Agnew), like John Doe, should be disciplined promptly, fairly and in a manner consistent with treatment accorded his fellow," lawyers told the court in their brief.

Center's Impact Report Rejected

Finding inadequate an environmental impact report on expansion of the Corte Madera Shopping Center, the Corte Madera Planning Commission last night refused to accept the report and returned it to the center's manager.

Commissioners felt the 76-page report was more an advocate of center expansion than an independent report on the effect of almost doubling the center's size.

"I feel the basic document is lacking a lot of information," said Commissioner C. William Thomas.

"In my own mind I don't feel it is complete. I, too, feel it reads like an advertising brochure," agreed commissioner John W. Gates.

Capital Planning Associates of Novato, the center's manager, has proposed that the present 240,000-square-foot center built in 1958 be expanded by 20,000 square feet of selling space.

Terra Engineering of Sacramento wrote the impact report which drew the commission's scorn.

Commissioner I. Thomas Zaragoza joined colleagues in calling for more "explicit information" in the impact report, especially regarding increased traffic on town streets and within the center site.

Robert L. Dunn, a new commissioner who will be seated at the commission's next meeting, joined in the discussion and also criticized the report for inadequately treating traffic problems and increased water sewer needs.

"We still want to work with you," declared Thomas after he moved that the report be returned to Capital Planning. He persuaded the commission to postpone a public hearing on center expansion plans until the impact report is ready for re-submission.

Representatives of both Capital Planning Associates and Terra Engineering appeared before the commission.

Dennis J. Daleiden, who wrote the impact report, told commissioners they have a chance "to make the center a strong and viable asset to the future." He said the town would receive a 50 per cent increase in tax revenue from the center with "a minimal amount of problems."

But William G. McBride, town zoning administrator, and Clifford E. Temps, public works director, recommended that the report not be accepted. They said it failed to provide data to support claims that the center would not create major problems, especially concerning traffic.

An audience of about 30 persons attended the public hearing on the impact report but none commented as the council unanimously rejected the report.

The Corte Madera Planning Commission Also:

ORDINANCE — Recommended that the town council adopt an ordinance creating a "planned development district." In areas designated as planned development districts all landowners would have to submit development plans to the commission at the same time so the plans could be evaluated in relation to each other.

Martin Indicted On Gun Charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dino Martin, son of singer-actor Dean Martin, was indicted by a federal grand jury yesterday on charges of unlawfully possessing and transferring illegal firearms.

The 22-year-old Martin was arrested at his home last Jan. 16 and was released after an appearance before a U.S. magistrate.

The indictment alleges he had eight machine guns and one anti-tank gun in his possession and none was registered to him. It was also alleged he unlawfully transferred ownership of two machine guns.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jerry Newton said conviction could mean a maximum of 20 years in prison and a fine of $20,000.

Environment Honors Go To ABAG

I-J Special Report
BERKELEY — The Association of Bay Area Governments has received an award of merit for outstanding environmental enhancement in the Bay Area Council's fifth annual contest for environmental contributions.

The council praised ABAG's planning efforts, its attempt to end urban sprawl and effort to increase local officials' understanding about regional issues.

The award also cited Marin County's general plan as unique in the nine-county region, "because Marin is coordinating and reconciling each city's master plan with the county's as well as with the ABAG regional plan."

(Novato is the only city in the county with an adopted master plan; other cities still are drafting theirs. Economic consultants to the county cautioned last week that its plan does not answer housing questions such as where low and moderate-income persons are to live in the future.)

The council's fifth annual awards were made at a Friday luncheon at His Lordship's Restaurant.

Chamber Music Concert Is Slated

The latest in a series of chamber music concerts sponsored by the Mill Valley Art Commission will be held Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Mill Valley Methodist Church.

Selections by Bach, Vivaldi and Telemann will be featured, with performers including David Subke of Mill Valley, who is a flutist with the Oakland Symphony.

Fontez Will Run Again For Post

Marin County Treasurer-Tax Collector Stanley J. Fontez took out nomination papers and announced yesterday he will seek a fourth term in the job he has held since 1962.

"The continued refinement and increased efficiency of the tax collection and fund investment process in Marin County has been my constant goal during my 12 years in service for the taxpayers," he said in making his announcement.

The 55-year-old Fontez said his aim is to provide "the greatest possible safety as well as the highest possible return on investments."

Fontez's office acts as the investments agency for the county as well as local school districts and special taxing districts.

Last year, his investments earned nearly $3 million. How Fontez invests the funds is regulated by state law.

Fontez was elected treasurer-tax collector after working six years as chief accountant in the county auditor-controller's office.

He has lived in Marin since 1924, attending public schools in Fairfax and Mill Valley. He was graduated from San Francisco State College and later did graduate work in fiduciary investment programs and pension fund management at Stanford University.

Fontez is past president of the association of county treasurers and the association of county tax collectors. He is currently president of the state association of county retirement administrators.

Other memberships include the Marin Rod and Gun Club, Native Sons of the Golden West and American Legion.

He resides with his wife, Florence, and two daughters at the family home at 108 San Luis Way, Novato. His son, Lawrence, lives in San Rafael.

Filing period for the $26,904-per-year job runs through March 8.

Town Meeting Chairman Named

John Shellenberger is new chairman of the San Rafael Town Meeting Association.

He was named to the post after Dorothy L. Breiner resigned to accept an appointment to the San Rafael Planning Commission.

Shellenberger, of 618 Las Colindas, said he is seeking applicants for two vacancies on the group's board of directors.

LAKE SONOMA SITE — The wooded hills and valleys along Dry Creek and Warm Springs Creek, northwest of Healdsburg, Sonoma County, are the site for the Army Corps of Engineers proposed Warm Springs Dam-Lake Sonoma project. The horizontal strips in the foreground mark the area of the planned dam and the lines running to the right and left mark the proposed height of the lake. The $113 million project which would impound a 381,000-acre-foot lake has sparked opposition from conservationists.

WATER PROJECT

Warm Springs Project Stirs To Controversy

By FRANK FARRARA
(First of two articles)

Warm Springs Dam-Lake Sonoma, a planned major water project northwest of Healdsburg, has emerged from the doldrums into a controversy.

The project, conceived more than 20 years ago and authorized in 1962, is being challenged by environmentalists, public officials and taxpayers.

The $113 million Army Corps of Engineers project on Dry Creek, a major tributary of the Russian River, was designed to provide flood control, water supply and recreation.

About $33 million has been spent for land, road relocation and bridge construction and President Richard M. Nixon recently included $13.5 million for the project in his proposed 1974-75 budget.

Yet, Marin and Sonoma county groups, protesting the size of the project, have urged the reviewing agency, the Council on Environmental Quality in Washington, D.C., to postpone construction.

The Army Corps of Engineers is scheduled to call for bids on the next phase of construction, outlet works, spillway and embankment, Friday.

The project will create Lake Sonoma, a vast reservoir that will extend 12 miles up Dry Creek and seven miles up Warm Springs Creek with 73 miles of shoreline.

The lake will hold 381,000 acre-feet of water with 115,000 acre-feet to be available annually as water supply for Sonoma, Marin and a portion of Mendocino counties. The earthen dam will be 3,000 feet long and 319 feet high.

The recreation plan includes camping, fishing, boating, swimming, hiking, horseback riding and picnicking developments, estimated to cost $5.58 million.

A fish hatchery, estimated to cost $1.17 million, and a wildlife sanctuary of about 3,200 acres are included in the project scheduled to be completed by 1980.

Critics charge the amount of water to be made available for municipal use is higher than needed and will promote growth.

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-Tiburon, has labeled the project "oversized and unjustified" and asked that the state withdraw support for it. He asked that alternatives be studied so the purposes can be accomplished "at far less federal, state and local costs, both in taxpayers' dollars and environmental damages."

North Marin County Water District, a potential user of Warm Springs water, has endorsed the project, but said the 115,000 acre-foot a year supply is "excessive based on estimates of future water requirements within the foreseeable future," and urged the municipal supply be reduced.

Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson said the district doesn't have any obligation to contract for any of the project water, but expects the North Marin area will need an additional supply after 1980.

In the Marin Municipal Water District, voters have twice rejected proposals to tie into the Sonoma County water agency aqueduct, which would carry Warm Springs water into Marin.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors, Marin Conservation League, Marin Municipal Water District and the Warm Springs Dam Task Force, a coalition of Sonoma County citizen groups, have asked that the project be postponed until the comprehensive Russian River Basin study by the Army Corps of Engineers is completed.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, which also serves as the Sonoma County Water Agency board, and the Sonoma County Farm Bureau, have strongly supported proceeding on schedule.

Sonoma County Supervisor Charles E. Hinkle, in a dissenting vote, said the final decision on construction "should be put in front of the people to vote on."

Sonoma County supervisors authorized $115 million in revenue bonds for aqueducts and other water facilities, skirting a vote. The move angered some voters and was challenged in a 1972 referendum that narrowly failed.

The Warm Springs Dam Task Force has said that about 40 per cent of the municipal water supply at the project was slated for use in Marin County. They said Marin users may not want that water, since Marin Municipal district voters have rejected proposals to tie into the Sonoma aqueduct.

If Marin doesn't take the water, the entire local financial burden for the dam will fall on Sonoma County property tax payers, the task force said.

The Sonoma County Water Agency is to pay 27.8 per cent of the costs, $31,888,000, with the remainder to be paid by federal funds.

Task force cochairman Iva Warner said an alternative to Warm Springs dam would be to raise the existing Coyote Dam near Ukiah by 40 feet. This would provide an additional 50,000 acre-feet annually, at a cost of $15 million and cause minimal environmental effects, she said.

Pair Held In Probe Of Burglary

Two men driving a car reported stolen from the daughter of a San Francisco policeman were arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglarizing three Mill Valley homes, police said.

Mack Burton, 32, of Oakland, and James Coert, 25, of San Francisco, were held in county jail in lieu of $2,500 bail each to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

They were taken into custody at 1:30 p.m. at Tamalpais junction after police pulled over their auto, recently reported stolen in San Francisco.

In the car, officers said, were change, jewelry and a stereo set believed stolen from homes in the 400 block of Eldridge Avenue, Quarry Road and the 100 block of Marguerite Avenue.

Police said one of the burglary victims, working in the garage of his Eldridge Avenue residence, returned to the house to discover some household items missing. He alerted police after seeing two men speed from the home in an auto.

The Marin Conservation League said enlargement of Coyote Dam could bring an additional 70,000 acre-feet of water annually for Sonoma and Marin counties.

Third Man Sentenced In Robbery

The youngest of three San Francisco men who admitted holding up a San Rafael takeout restaurant received a six-months-to-life prison sentence yesterday.

Kingsley Wayne Chew, 19, thus becomes the third man to draw a prison term for the holdup last March 9 at the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant. The robbery netted $500.

Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court, who sentenced Chew in November gave one-year-to-life sentences to Tommy Wong, 26, and Keijo Nakahara, 23.

All three men presently are serving prison terms for robberies in San Mateo and San Francisco counties.

Best invoked a special provision of the state penal code to set Chew's minimum sentence at six months, although he warned the young man there is little chance he will gain parole after only half a year.

The three pleaded guilty to entering the restaurant, threatening the manager and his wife and daughter with a gun, and fleeing with cash taken from a floor safe and from the manager and his wife.

Vote Power Belongs To Students

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — With apologies to the Beatles, an enterprising campus politician at Southern Illinois University might orchestrate the next voter registration drive with lyrics such as these:

"You say you want a revolution, well... you know... all you got to do is vote. You say that it's the institutions, well... you know... all you got to do is vote."

For in this Jackson County college town of 26,857, SIU's 18,000 students, thanks to the 18-year-old vote, hold the balance of power. With organization they could run the city and county and be power brokers in Springfield races.

Consider the statistics. In Jackson County, says County Clerk Delmar Ward, there are 33,177 registered voters, about 14,000 of them in Carbondale and about 9,000 of those in the nine "student precincts" Ward had to draw to accommodate 18-year-old voters.

Disallowing 1,800 or so of the voters in the new precincts as non-students, students still easily outnumber non-students eligible to vote in city elections and would outnumber non-students in county elections if all of them registered without a balancing pick up in non-student registration.

By the estimate of the campus news service, 99.5 per cent of SIU's students are 18 or older. And many of them, including the 5,324 in campus housing, live in the city limits. Most of the remainder live in the county. Any full-time student can meet the 30-day residency registration requirement.

Mayor Neal Eckert, 35, weighs the figures and says, "Well, they certainly could be a factor. But I think the main atmosphere that I sense is one of apathy. I think the students generally respond to a specific issue. I think then they'll realize the extent of their control."

Apparently they haven't yet. A bond issue for a new municipal swimming pool-ice skating rink, a project thought particularly attractive to students, recently died by a 700-500 vote. Few students balloted.

Michael Carr, 22, of Collinsville, president of the student government and a Carbondale voter, is a little surprised when he hears the figures.

"That means the students wield quite a bit of power around here if you could get them all behind one thing. There would have to be an extensive campaign to make them aware that indeed there was a block. A campaign to let this information out could definitely be of some impact in the future."

Ward says, "It seems they are more interested in national elections than they are in local because they realize they are not going to be here all the time."

Argument On Doubleton Signal Misses The Point, Says Expert

"Please settle an argument that has split our bridge club right down the middle," a reader pleads. "The question is whether it is always, without exception, correct to signal a doubleton of your partner's opening lead."

FIRST TRICK
"West opened the king of diamonds," the letter continues, "and East played the ten of diamonds at the first trick."

"West assumed that East would not bother to signal with a doubleton. Therefore West led the ace of diamonds at the second trick, and South had no further problem."

CAN GO DOWN
"South goes down if West switches to either black suit at the second trick. South must draw three trumps before he can cash the clubs; and this leaves only two trumps in dummy, not enough for three losing spades."

"But this is aside from the main point. Should East signal his doubleton in diamonds by playing the ten, or should he play the deuce of diamonds at the first trick?"

MOST PLAY HIGH
Most experts play high, but some play low. It's wise to agree on this matter with your favorite partners.

Nevertheless West should switch to a black suit at the second trick no matter who holds the missing diamond. If East has it, South will ruff the second diamond. If South has the last diamond, however, he cannot eat it.

There is nothing in dummy on which he can get rid of a diamond; and he cannot have enough winners in his own hand to discard three diamonds from the dummy. Hence West can afford to sit back and wait instead of trying to cash the ace of diamonds.

ANSWER: Bid one diamond. You intend to bid clubs later, unless partner raises diamonds enthusiastically. With a freakish two-suiter it pays to open the bidding a trifle light rather than pass.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Reinecke Campaign Hurt By ITT Probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke says the unresolved federal investigation of his links to the ITT antitrust affair has put his campaign for governor "on the brink of very serious troubles."

"I'd be less than candid if I didn't say that it caused some uncertainties and some harm already," Reinecke told UPI in an interview yesterday.

"We're on the brink of very serious troubles."

A series of campaign news conferences planned throughout the state yesterday was postponed because of the lingering controversy, Reinecke said. At the same time, he abruptly turned over the job of taking out his candidacy papers to a Sacramento supporter.

Nevertheless, the 50-year-old Republican insisted his quest for governor, which began five years ago with his appointment as the No. 2 executive behind Gov. Ronald Reagan, was "moving ahead."

He denied published reports that he called his political advisers together to discuss quitting the race. And he declared the protracted controversy had not resulted in any "detectable" falling out of supporters.

At issue is the outcome of a federal probe of Reinecke's role in an offer by International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. to help finance the 1972 Republican National Convention in San Diego.

Varying statements by Reinecke about a key date in the controversy have created the specter of possible perjury indictment.

The lieutenant governor steadfastly maintained he was free of any wrongdoing.

"I feel very certain I will be cleared," he added.

CHOKING DEVICE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Restaurants would be required to have a device to prevent diners from choking to death on food stuck in their throats under a bill which has advanced in the Assembly.

The bill (AB2696) by Assemblyman John P. Quimby, D-San Bernardino, cleared the Health Committee yesterday on a 7-1 vote and was sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

CONFLICT LAW

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly has reversed itself and narrowly approved a bill permitting public officials to keep confidential the names of their private clients under the state's new conflict-of-interest law.

The bill was approved yesterday on a 41-31 vote, the bare minimum needed for passage. But the measure was blocked from final passage by a Republican maneuver to have it reconsidered again.

After the measure was approved, Assembly GOP leader Robert Beverly of Manhattan Beach asked it be held for reconsideration.

"I think the law is valid and constitutional," Beverly said, "and I do not want to be party to an apparent watering down of the law."

TRAIN SERVICE

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A resolution urging AMTRAK to provide passenger train service between the San Francisco Bay Area and Eureka has been sent to Assembly floor.

The resolution by Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Santa Rosa, was unanimously approved yesterday by the Assembly Rules Committee. It urges reinstitution of passenger service to the Redwood Empire.

Jail Term Given To Vallejo Man

A Vallejo man who pleaded guilty to misdemeanor burglary has been sentenced to 45 days in jail and placed on one year's probation.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court sentenced David Lewis Stanley, 23, on Friday.

According to Sausalito police, Stanley admitted breaking into a house on Miller Avenue in that city on Jan. 8, eating fruit and stealing a portable television set.

He said he was robbed in San Francisco and was hungry and broke, police reported.

Chicago Police Get New Chief

CHICAGO (UPI) — Acting Police Supt. James M. Rochford was named superintendent of police by Mayor Richard J. Daley yesterday. Rochford promptly announced plans to root out corruption from the scandal-tainted, 13,000-member department.

Rochford, 52, said he will create an Office of Professional Standards to deal with allegations and suspicions of police corruption and reports of police brutality.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Secret In Treating A Stroke Is To Start Soon As Possible

Almost two million Americans have survived a stroke. Many have recovered completely, whereas others are slightly or completely disabled. The outlook varies, regardless of the severity of the stroke. Some victims with serious damage to the brain recover rapidly. Others take a long time to regain even partial use of the limbs, speech, or vision.

The secret is to start treatment as soon as possible because paralyzed muscles deteriorate unless moved or stimulated electrically. Surgery helps some, especially if only the carotid arteries in the neck are involved. But to restore function, the majority need rehabilitation.

THE RESULTS are not always perfect, but there is no way to determine the outcome without trying. Rehabilitation requires the cooperation of the physician, victim, and family. Motivation is of utmost importance.

A thorough examination is needed to evaluate the extent of the loss of motion, sensory and visual perception, intellect, language, and other brain functions. The paralyzed muscles need to be massaged to help stimulate circulation and to retain flexibility of the joints. Passive exercise involves having the limbs moved by someone else. These maneuvers usually begin as soon as the acute phase of the stroke subsides.

Days or weeks may elapse before muscular contractions are noted. This period is fraught with disappointment, but it is surprising how much can be accomplished when the man or woman has the will to recover. After sufficient progress is made, certain self-care and household activities can be used to enforce active exercise. The victim does as much as possible by himself until he regains confidence.

SOME CITIES have large "rehab" centers where a team of physicians and technicians offer skillful care and equipment. Others use the facilities of a specialist in physical medicine or obtain help from the visiting nurse service agency. Some states have vocational rehabilitation agencies for job counseling and physical restoration. It is worth the effort to seek assistance along this line so the stroke victim can get back on his feet or at least become a more independent person.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanied.

NO NAVEL

A reader writes: Although we have been married three years, my wife has not become pregnant. When she was young, she had a hernia operation which called for the removal of her navel. Is it possible to have a baby without a navel?

REPLY

The navel is a scar from the reproductive activities of the previous generation and has nothing to do with the ability to bear children. There are well established medical methods of determining whether you and your wife are capable of having a family.

LAUGHING JAG

O. P. writes: What causes a person to get laughing spells after drinking too much?

REPLY

Alcohol affects some people this way; it is annoying to the group but much better than belligerent or bellowing behavior.

Third Stage Of Israeli Pullout Ends

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
 Israeli tanks and troops rumbled out of captured Arab territory today to wind up the third and next-to-last stage of their pullback from Egyptian land seized during the 1973 Middle East War.

On the tense northern front, Israeli and Syrian artillery duelled for more than three hours in one of their heaviest exchanges on the rocky Golan Heights since last October's 17-day war.

Israeli armor and infantry units were scheduled to complete the third phase of their four-stage pullback from the west bank of the Suez Canal this evening, turning over the territory to U.N. peacekeeping forces.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said Israeli troops would wind up the fourth and final stage of the west bank pullback Feb. 21, withdrawing all their forces into the Sinai Desert.

The Israelis would then have troops 13 miles east of the 102-mile-long waterway behind a new string of desert fortifications nicknamed the Kissinger Line.

A military source in Tel Aviv said the Egyptians were keeping their part of the 40-day pullback accord, worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, by thinning forces along the canal's east bank and pulling missiles out of the desert.

The departing Israeli troops were part of a task force that surged across the canal during the last days of the war, trapping the Egyptian 3rd Army and isolating the city of Suez.

In Cairo, President Anwar Sadat made preparations for tomorrow's opening of a five-nation summit meeting to discuss a possible Syrian-Israeli troop pullback agreement and the lifting of the oil boycott against the United States.

Israel said two civilians were killed and five soldiers and a civilian wounded yesterday during the clashes with Syria along the Golan Heights.

Veneman Files His Candidacy Papers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John G. Veneman, a former Nixon administration official, filed papers for his candidacy for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor yesterday.

Veneman, 48, served seven years as a state assemblyman before going to Washington, D.C., where he served as an undersecretary in the Health, Education and Welfare Department.

What's a public relations man doing in our Service Department?

He's here to see that you're happy. His title is Service Manager. Come in. Have a talk with him. He listens.

Additional Eastern States For Gas Plan

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL
 Pennsylvania and Maryland have joined a growing list of states imposing an alternate day gasoline rationing plan. Both new plans take effect tomorrow and bring to eight the number of states adopting their own rationing plans.

New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Washington State and the District of Columbia began odd-even rationing plans yesterday, and plans in Oregon and Hawaii were instated last month. Under the plan, motorists whose license plates end in odd digits can buy gasoline only on odd-numbered days of the month.

Cars with even-numbered license plates can buy gas only on even-numbered days of the month, such as today.

Results where the plan began yesterday were mixed. Many filling station owners said they were waiting until today to begin. But in New Jersey, the only northeastern state that now has a mandatory plan, officials said the system plan was working and there were shorter lines at filling stations. Maryland's plan will also be mandatory when it takes effect tomorrow.

"The lines are not half as long as they were last week," said a policeman in Paterson.

Gas Customers Ignore Robbery

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The long line of motorists anxiously awaiting service at a gasoline station in nearby Scott Township barely noticed the unidentified man who robbed the station yesterday and fled with an estimated $500, police said.

Holding a pistol, the man demanded cash from attendants Charles Knorr, 53, and William Diggins, 52, and locked them in the station office. Then he walked away from the crowded ARCO station to a car parked down the road while most customers ignored him, police said.

$3,100 In Lumber Is Reported Stolen

Lumber valued at $3,100 was taken from the Continental Development Co. site at 190 South Novato Boulevard during the past weekend, according to Novato police.

The missing plywood apparently was carried out by truck, police said.

Esalen Accused Of Sexism Role

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Esalen Institute, an organization dedicated to teaching people how to get along with each other and their environment, is now being accused of sexism.

"The general structure of Esalen is sexist. Women occupy the low paying positions. Men are the bosses," said Anna K. Rush, a former Esalen staff member and author of the book, "Getting Clear."

She said it is "very damaging that a place which advertises itself as a university for human consciousness is run with a male chauvinist philosophy."

Church Bares His Finances

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has released a details of his personal finances, and he urged Congress to require such disclosure by all Senate and House candidates in election years.

Church, who is up for reelection, has periodically filed public disclosures of his finances during the last 10 years. The last time was in 1969.

He listed these sources of income: his $42,500 annual salary as a senator; an average annual income of $10,500 for lectures; $51.34 a month his wife receives from an insurance annuity left by her father; and $10,000 a year as an annual installment left to his wife from the sale of her interest in the Robinson Bar Ranch near Clayton, Idaho, and 6 per cent interest on the $50,000 savings invested in municipal bonds.

In 1972, Church said, he paid $13,457.85 in federal income taxes, $787.32 in Social Security taxes, $3,223.36 in Idaho income tax and $1,706.20 in property and excise taxes.

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A service station operator who charged a membership fee as a precondition for gas purchases was fined $500 in Federal Court here yesterday.
 The fining of William Busenbark, owner and operator of Bill's Exxon station, was for his violation of a court order enjoining him from charging the membership fee.
 He was found guilty of contempt of court. Busenbark, his employees and agents had been enjoined in a previous hearing.

Quaker Group Questions Nixon As A Believer

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — A Quaker group yesterday asked President Nixon to withdraw his membership from the Society of Friends on grounds his policies conflict with the teachings of that religion.
 In a letter to the President, the University Friends meeting quoted passages of the Quaker book "Faith and Practice" which said members should "live in the virtue of that life and power that takes away the occasion of all wars, maintain a testimony against military training and preparation for war, and seek to recognize the divine in those with whom we may have basic differences."

"If these aims are not meaningful to you," the letter said, "we believe you should publicly withdraw your membership from the Society of Friends. If they are meaningful to you, we urge you to have the courage to revise your policies accordingly or, finding that impossible, to resign from office."

Inflight Crash Cause Is Given

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — A Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) official says an attempted rendezvous by two Air Force jets led to Saturday's inflight collision which killed seven servicemen.
 The pilot of a malfunctioning T39, a twin-engine training jet that seats up to nine passengers, requested a tanker to inspect his plane's landing gear, FAA official David Olds said. The trainer apparently hit the tail section of the larger airplane during the maneuver and then plummeted 23,000 feet to earth.

Charlie Fox,
The Optimist

Charlie Fox was a man of optimism yesterday. He held his head high and talked of hits, runs, speed on the basepaths and defense. He even sounded optimistic when the subject of pitching came up.

Fox, going into his fifth year as San Francisco Giants manager, held his annual pre-spring training press conference at Candlestick Park and discussed his plans for the coming season. Unlike past years when question marks filled certain positions, this year the Giants' lineup is set. It's a good, strong lineup... until you get to the last and most important position, number nine. In the National League, where designated hitters are unwelcome, the number nine batter is the pitcher. There is the rub, as one writer used to put it.

The eight starters to provide the hits and runs for the Giants are Dave Kingman at third base, Chris Speier at shortstop, Tito Fuentes at second, Ed Goodson at first, Bobby Bonds, Garry Maddox and Gary Matthews in the outfield and Dave Rader behind the plate.

When asked to list a specific batting order, Fox said he would rather wait until spring training but said Bonds would lead off and Kingman would be batting higher in the batting order than last year when he usually batted sixth or seventh.

PITCHING? FOX SAID his four rotation starting pitchers are Ron Bryant, Tom Bradley, John D'Acquisto and newcomer Mike Caldwell who came to the Giants from San Diego in trade for Willie McCovey. That pitching staff will not strike any fear in the hearts of the opposing National League batters.

In answer to a question of whether Bryant, 24-game winner last year, could repeat as a 20-game winner this time around, Fox said he felt Ron could repeat. When asked why, Fox said, "Because I've got a helluva bullpen." That was a put down. Charlie was referring to Bryant's tendency not to finish what he starts. In 39 starting assignments, Bryant completed eight games last year. The bullpen was truly a major factor in his win-loss record. And the friction between manager and pitcher continues.

The fifth place in the Giants' rotation will probably go to either Jim Barr, Jim Willoughby or Don Carrithers. Key short relief men will be Randy Moffitt and Elias Sosa.

ANOTHER PROBLEM facing Fox is the shortage of catchers. Mike Sadek, despite his .167 batting average last year, will have to be backup man to Rader. Jake Brown, who batted .290 for Phoenix last year, is already through for the '74 season. He broke his left arm about two weeks ago in an accident in a Houston steel mill, where he was working in the off season.

Fox said his troops will be doing more hitting and running this year in an attempt to utilize the team speed, perhaps the best in baseball. At Phoenix spring training, Fox said he's going to "stress more on fundamentals because we have to shore up the defense."

About the trade of McCovey for Caldwell, Fox said, "We thought we got somebody who can play regularly for us." And he also said his job as a manager should be easier because the team is more stable. To put it another way, Charlie won't have to be worrying so much about McCovey's aching knees.

FOX SAID THE TEAM will be "together" this year, no more of the individual glory stuff. It's a "we" season, says Charlie, and I hope he can communicate that message to the hired help.

All the time Charlie was talking up the club's chances this year, I couldn't help but notice the glossy pictures of the Giants pinned on the walls of the Candlestick Park press room. In prominent places among the pictures of the current players were action photographs of Willie Mays, Willie McCovey and Juan Marichal.

It's as if the ghosts of the recent past were staring down at Charlie at his annual get-together with the press.

It seems a little early for basketball season to end, but in practical terms that's what will happen if San Rafael High School wins its two games this week.

The undefeated Bulldogs (10-0) can clinch a tie for the Marin County Athletic League championship with a victory over visiting Redwood (7-3) tomorrow at 4 p.m. A San Rafael triumph Friday over Drake (also 7-3) will mean an outright title.

Clowns-Novato Game Draws 600 Fans

An estimated 600 fans attended last night's benefit basketball game between the Harlem Clowns and the Novato High School faculty, enabling the school to raise "a few bucks, maybe $300 or $400, for sweets for the basketball team," according to athletic director Randy English.

"The crowd loved it," he added. The Clowns, a touring comedy basketball team, won, 74-42.

Secretariat and Riva Ridge cannot meet these guidelines because the number of immature sperm is higher than acceptable.

"I do not know why such narrow restrictions were written into the agreements but I do know that breeding plans will go on as anticipated. Several syndicate members have mares—and I have three myself—that will be bred to Secretariat as soon as the mares are in season."

Mrs. Tweedy said the test results give syndicate members a chance to back out of their agreement, adding that "some may do so and we may have a change in the syndicate by the time the season is over." Secretariat and Riva Ridge are both at Claiborne Farm near Louisville.

A's Skipper Having A Change Of Heart?

Williams May Show At Camp

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Now that Dick Williams knows he can't manage any other team but Oakland this season, he is indicating he might pilot the A's again.

U.S. District Judge Lloyd H. Burke held yesterday that Williams, who managed the A's to two consecutive World Championships, breached his contract with Finley and thus can't manage any other team in baseball through 1975.

The judge ruled that contracts signed Dec. 19, 1972, and July 17, 1973, by Williams were valid and binding. The second contract extended Williams' duties through the 1975 American League season.

After announcing his resignation, Williams accepted the managerial position with the New York Yankees but that agreement was ruled invalid by then American League President Joe Cronin.

Williams has since taken a non-baseball job with a Florida land developer.

Second thoughts

"I don't understand what a federal judge in Mr. Finley's home area is doing ruling on this thing," said Williams. "They say I'm under contract with him for the next two years. Well, let's wait until the opening of spring training. I might just show up there."

Asked if he would appear as a visitor or participant, Williams said "what else does a manager do?"

"I'd hate, however, to see Charlie hire another manager now, because baseball laws differ a little from court laws."

Team captain Sal Bando indicated that he felt the team would like to have Williams back.

"If we got Dick back, I think you'd see the players respond," Bando said. "He can make guys play ball. He's a leader. We need him."

Bando is one of 18 members of the A's still unsigned.

San Rafael Cagers Hope To Cinch Tie For Marin Title

It seems a little early for basketball season to end, but in practical terms that's what will happen if San Rafael High School wins its two games this week.

The undefeated Bulldogs (10-0) can clinch a tie for the Marin County Athletic League championship with a victory over visiting Redwood (7-3) tomorrow at 4 p.m. A San Rafael triumph Friday over Drake (also 7-3) will mean an outright title.

Other MCAL games tomorrow find Tamalpais at Drake, 4 p.m., Marin Catholic at Terra

Linda, 5:30 p.m., and San Marin at Novato, 7 p.m.

San Rafael has gotten this far by winning its close ones, including a 46-44 triumph over Redwood in their first meeting. The Bulldogs also have beaten Tamalpais by one, Marin Catholic by four, San Marin and Drake by five and Tam by seven — six victories by a total of 24 points.

Meanwhile, their challengers have been falling by the wayside. Redwood, after looking awesome at mid-season, dropped two of its last three games, including a 56-50 loss to Tam last Friday. Drake underwent a three-game midyear slump, and has since bounced back with three straight victories, but probably too late.

If the Bulldogs win the title, they will be the fourth school in four years to do it, since Drake won last year, Tam the year before and Redwood the year before that. The 1971 Redwood team was the last to go through the 14-game schedule undefeated.

San Rafael has not taken the crown since 1964, when the Bulldogs tied Novato at 10-2 and won a playoff for the right to go to the Tournament of Champions. The title has not left the Tamalpais Union High School District (Redwood, Drake, Tam) since that year.

Drake (7-3) could at least delay the outright clinching by winning today against Tam (5-5) and again Friday against San Rafael. The Pirates face a Tam team which has won four of its last five, losing only by a point to San Rafael, during a belated surge.

Marin Catholic (3-7) made a determined upset bid last Friday before succumbing to San Rafael, 56-50. The Wildcats have lost four straight, but the last two have been by six and three points, and they may break their string against cellar-dwelling Terra Linda (1-9).

Novato (5-5) has won five of seven after a disastrous 0-3 start, including a 69-48 romp over Terra Linda Friday. The Hornets' foe San Marin (2-8) has been playing well despite being outmanned.

A's Leading Baseball In Arbitration

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Oakland A's, world champions on the baseball diamond, are apparently out front in salary arbitration as well.

About 10 Oakland players have submitted their salary disputes with owner Charles O. Finley to a neutral arbitrator, as provided for by the new agreement between the Major League Baseball Players Association and the club owners.

A's relief pitcher Rollie Fingers and third baseman Sal Bando head the list, with their hearings scheduled for today. Among the other A's still unsigned, and likely to have asked for arbitration, are Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi, Ken Holtzman, Gene Tenace, Darold Knowles, Billy Conigliaro, Ted Kubiak and Jack Heidemann.

A total of about 45 players have submitted their names for arbitration, according to a spokesman for Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association.

Dick Woodson, a 28-year-old pitcher for the Minnesota Twins, Monday became the first player to have his salary dispute heard by an arbitrator under the new guidelines.

Detroit lawyer and labor arbitrator Harry H. Platt met with Woodson, Twins official Clark Griffith and their attorneys for more than four hours on the salary deadlock. He said a final contract for Woodson had been filed at the hearing, which he described as "a historic occasion."

Olympic Ban Possible For College Stars

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — Many U.S. college athletes could be barred from the 1976 Montreal Olympic Games, according to Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The problem has arisen, Killanin said yesterday, because of a recent National Collegiate Athletic Association ruling that an athlete can be a professional in one sport and compete as an amateur in another.

Killanin said a new draft rule defining an amateur sportsman will be published "within two months" but he made it clear the rule would incorporate a by-law to disqualify any athlete who competes as a professional

Embattled Warriors Vs. Boston

OAKLAND (UPI) — Coach Al Attles is glad that the Golden State Warriors had two games in two nights over the weekend.

After blowing a 14-point lead and losing to Kansas City by a point Saturday night, the Warriors took Phoenix 121-105 Sunday night to move one-half game up on Los Angeles in their battle for first in the National Basketball Association Pacific Division. They are two games ahead of the Lakers in the key loss column moving into tonight's 8 o'clock game with tough Boston here.

"We came back very well after that loss to Kansas City," says Attles. "We were fortunate that we had a game Sunday, instead of waiting around for a few days."

Hunch Basketball In Mill Valley

A hunch basketball league, which requires only two players to a team, is being organized by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department.

Signups will be Feb. 19-23 with play beginning the following week at Mill Valley Middle School gym. Donald Hunter, recreation supervisor, can provide more information.

Meanwhile, latest NBA statistics show the Warriors' Rick Barry leading the team and 10th in the league with a 23.5 average. Jeff Mullins is the top free throw shooter at 90.4 per cent and Barry is third at 90.1. Barry is also eighth in assists.

The Warriors roared at Boston in their last meeting with the Celtics, winning 123-102 for their first victory in three games between the teams this season.

Tests Don't Worry Secretariat's Owner

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Triple crown winner Secretariat has failed to pass a fertility test administered by veterinarians but the horse's owner, Mrs. Helen "Penny" Tweedy, has no doubts about Secretariat's future worth.

"Both Secretariat and Riva Ridge act normally with mares and the vets are sure they will be potent stallions and so am I," said Mrs. Tweedy, who heads a $6.04 million syndicate controlling Secretariat's breeding rights.

Mrs. Tweedy, here for a Thoroughbred Breeders' Association meeting, acknowledged yesterday that the record-breaking horse failed to pass a narrowly drawn fertility test. The results showed that Secretariat and Riva Ridge, winner of the 1972 Kentucky Derby have an immature form of normal sperm. Mrs. Tweedy doesn't believe it means Secretariat isn't fertile.

"The immature sperm just won't impregnate the mares," she said. "The mature ones will."

"Veterinarians set guidelines, and certain characteristics of the horse's sperm must not fall below or above certain levels."

Don Johnson ('57) scored 19 points to lead the Odds, while LeRoy Barrow ('68) pumped in 14 for the Evens. Steve Bryant ('59) and Rich Abbott ('62) each netted nine points.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Redwood City Man
New Derby Leader

Rich Scofield of Redwood City is the new leader in the "Lord of the Sea" Combination Sturgeon and Striper Derby.

Saturday, he arrived with Chuck Van Derberg and his wife, Cathy. Last year, Chuck and his wife made 15 trips and took 14 sturgeon. They decided to participate again this year. The Van Derbergs brought along a friend — Scofield.

He signed up for the Loch Lomond Live Bait and Tackle Shop-sponsored derby. Rich then left the Loch Lomond harbor around 8 a.m. He dropped anchor between The Sisters and the Marin Islands. On the second cast, Rich hooked a 173-pound sturgeon.

He played the fish about an hour, got it up to the boat, lassoed it, then hauled it into the boat. They were back at Loch Lomond weighing in the monster before 10 a.m. This is Rich's first trip. And me, I've been out six times and can't get a touch.

I saw the fish — it was a monster fish, 7-foot-1. It looked like it would be impossible to land, but there it was. I believe it was a big female, probably carrying 40 pounds of roe, though the fish was taken home in the round, so I'm only guessing. It was the largest sturgeon I've ever seen and the largest so far ever logged in at the Loch Lomond Bait Barge.

SAM CRAWFORD'S 114 pounder, former number one fish, was really eclipsed by this one. Paul O'Neal's third-place catch, a 72 pounder really looks like a baby. Harold Lansing of the Loch Lomond Chevron Station came in Sunday with a 66 pounder, so he's finally got on the derby list at fifth place. Approximately 12 other sturgeon were boated around the area though fishing for sturgeon could be rated as tough.

The striper catches were few and far between. A 24 pounder still leads the derby, with a 19 pounder in the eighth spot.

There's still lots of room for you and me to log a fish.

SPORT AND COMMERCIAL fishing and sport hunting in California generate well over $1 billion for the state's economy, according to the latest figures from the Department of Fish and Game analysts.

The information was developed as the department's contribution to the 1974 economic report to the governor.

California's estimated 2.2 million sport fishermen invested $13.4 million in fishing licenses and stamps last year. Fishermen spent another $376 million through direct purchases of gear, bait and the amenities of travel, food and lodging.

The nearly 750,000 California hunters last year bought $5.4 million worth of licenses, tags and stamps, and then spent $140 million more to outfit themselves and take part in wildlife activities.

The ocean party boat fishery is a melding of the sport and commercial fishing activities into one. In 1972, the nearly 500 partyboat operators carried 793,000 fishermen, when all the figures are in for 1973, that total is expected to be about 831,000 fishermen.

Together, these fishermen paid partyboat operators something like $7.175 million. Now slightly over $7 million is not a great deal of money when considering an industry with a total economic impact of more than $1 billion. But, on its own terms, this is a large figure and one that makes a healthy contribution to California's economy.

BIG CATCH — Rich Scofield of Redwood City displayed his awesome sturgeon caught Saturday, which landed him first place in the "Lord of the Sea" Combination Sturgeon and Striper Derby. It's a 7-foot-1, 173-pound whopper.

tribution to California's economy.

When all the landing tags have been totaled, it is expected to confirm that commercial fishermen harvested 840 million pounds of fish in 1973. This catch was worth about $155 million.

Although total landings in the commercial fishery declined by an estimated four million pounds last year, receipts were up by something like $11 million. This reflects the increased value of the commercial species.

Then there is the money from the processing of fish taken commercially. For each dollar from gross commercial fish landings, about $2.20 is generated by the processing and handling of the fish. Processing and handling then, add about $341 million to the economic contribution of the commercial fishery.

In all, the commercial fishing industry produces about $496 million in economic benefits last year.

SUPPOSE FISH and wildlife conservation in California were to come to a halt tomorrow. Could we afford the loss, ecologically speaking? Could we live with the consequent loss in recreation? Could we do without the jobs fishing and hunting provide? Could we replace the $1 billion lost to the economy.

Fish and Game Department director Ray Arnett says we sorely need the proposed license increases to keep these things going!

Petaluma's Late Heroics Not Enough

By PAUL DWORIN

It takes just three minutes to finish a basketball game.

At least that's what it came down to last night for Petaluma High School, as the Trojans were edged, 53-50, in overtime by visiting North Bay League rival Montgomery of Santa Rosa.

With just four seconds left in regulation play and the Vikings leading 46-44, Kriss Mungle put up a desperation 25-footer for Petaluma that was way off.

But just as the partisan crowd of 300 gave a sigh of defeat, Bill McDonald picked the ball off the backboard and put it in.

There was some question whether the basket was good and the referees asked Petaluma timekeeper Doug Johnson's opinion. After a moment's hesitation, Johnson indicated that McDonald had put the ball in before the final buzzer.

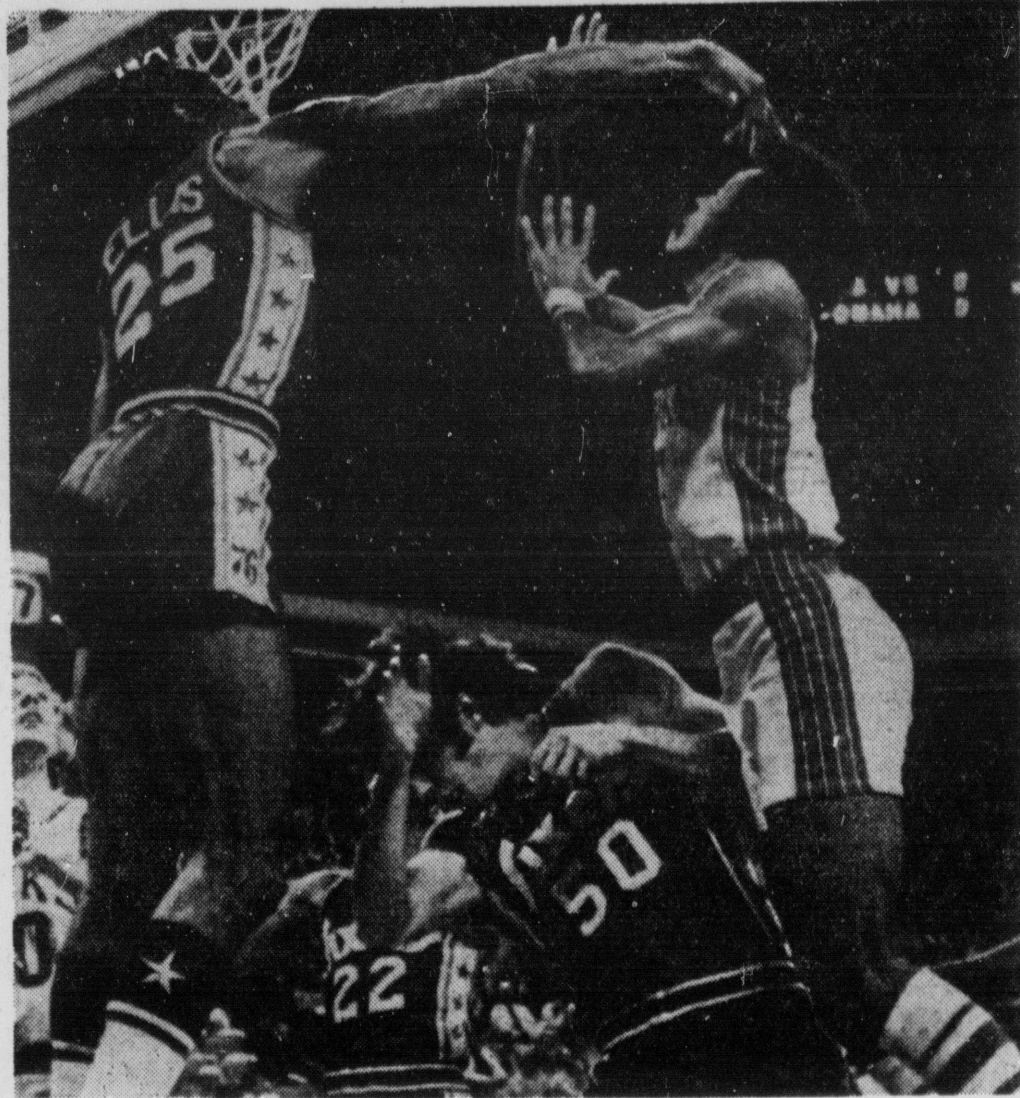

"There was absolutely no question in my mind that it was the right call," explained Johnson later about his hesitation. "I just thought that I should let everything cool down before I said anything."

The stage for McDonald's final second heroics was set by Sid Shired and Mike Maselli, who, between them, scored every other point in the fourth quarter and brought the Trojans back from a six-point third quarter deficit.

With 4:44 remaining in the game, Shired canned two free throws to tie the score at 39-39 and then 14 seconds later put in another one to give the Trojans their final lead of the game at 40-39.

"Everything in our game plan tonight worked right down to the letter," a quiet Mark Reichling said after the loss which dropped his Trojans' league mark to 3-8, six games behind Ukiah (9-2).

Montgomery — Vincent 7-15, Clausen 3-2-8, Bunting 5-9-12, Robinson 1-0-2, Christensen 4-2-10, Barclay 3-0-6. Totals: 23-73. Petaluma — Aldridge 5-0-10, Mungle 4-2-10, McDonald 2-2-6, Shired 4-6-14, Maselli 5-0-10. Totals: 20-50-56.

"It is the view of the executive, having discussed this very thoroughly, that for the Olympic Games it is not viable and it is too difficult to agree to amateur in one sport being a professional in another," Killanin said.

Killanin was asked if the NCAA ruling meant that some college athletes, who, for example, regarded as were professionals in basketball but remained amateur in track and field, would disqualify themselves from the Olympic Games.

"It is quite possible," Killanin said.

How Stewart Is Handling The Superstar Syndrome

By LEW CODDINGTON
"Superstar" is a much-abused term in sports, but if there is a precise meaning, it would refer to a player with abilities so far above the norm that his performance, and his problems, cannot be understood with conventional thinking.

The biggest problems facing San Rafael High School's Byron Stewart in the past two years have not involved putting the basketball in the hoop, but have centered around coping with the superstar syndrome.

He could score 20 points and be called a bum. Worse yet, he could score 20 points and play a bad game and help his team lose. He could disrupt a team with his attitude, with his remarks, with his style of play.

That he has done none of this is obvious from the fact that San Rafael is leading the Marin County Athletic League with a perfect 10-0 record, and that Stewart reached a personal pinnacle last Tuesday when he scored 41 points in a victory over Terra Linda. For this, he has been named Independent Journal Prep of the Week for the second time, a rare honor.

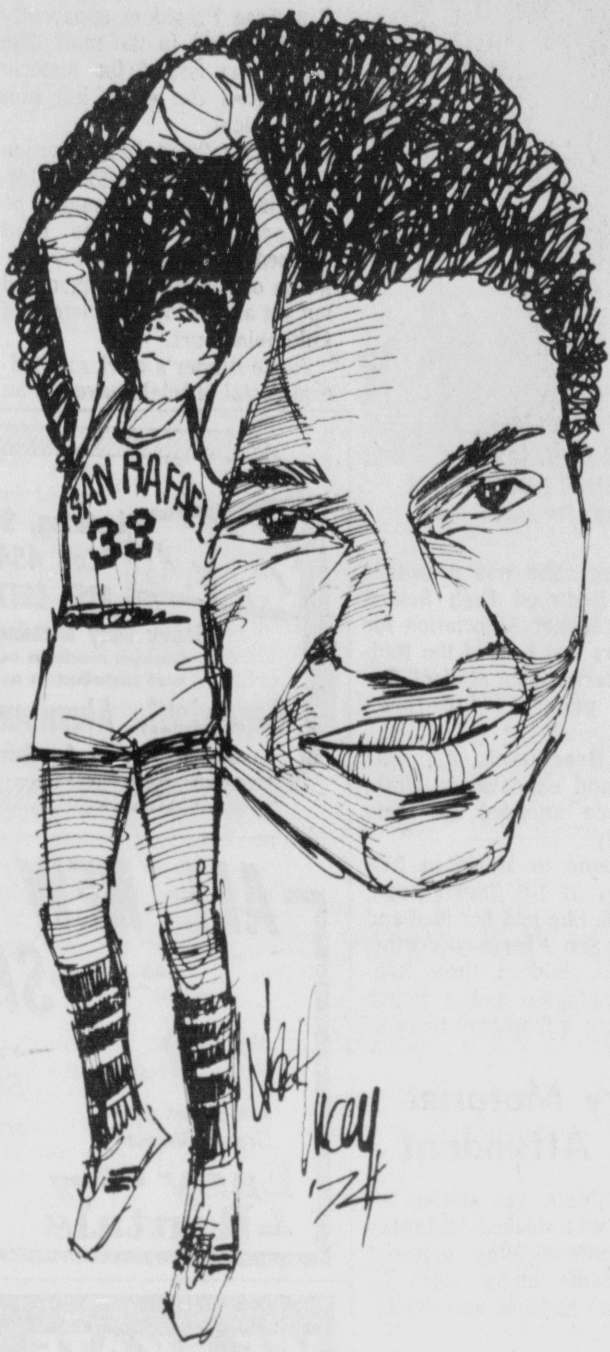

"Byron has matured in many ways," says coach Bret Tovani. "Early in the year, he felt a lot of pressure on him to score, to rebound, and to lead others. It's a lot to ask from anybody, and it took him some time, but he doesn't look around for excuses. He accepts the responsibility."

"It's easy to get the big head," Stewart says, "but everything I do out there, I owe to the team. When I got the 41 points, it made them feel good. They're the guys who made Stewart."

The 6-foot-7, 210-pound center said his scoring, and the attention that went with it, bothered the other players last year ("that's why we didn't win"), but that this season "everybody likes playing with everybody." Tovani concurred: "I don't know of any resentment on the part of any of the other players."

Several colleges have scouted Stewart and that, too, has posed problems. A representative of Gonzaga University in Spokane, Wash., brought things to a head in December.

"He offered him a full ride," Tovani said, "and this kind of thing makes it difficult for a high-school coach to teach anymore. I'm telling him he has to work on this and on that, but he figured he's already got money in the bank.

"But we're good enough friends, and we had a talk," Tovani continued. "I leveled with him and said that some (college) coaches were no longer interested in him because of what they had heard about his attitude. Since that time, he's been a different kid."

For his part, Stewart says, "Coach Tovani is my best friend. He watches out for me wherever I go. I have to look out for myself, so I'm double-protected."

Whether "double-protected" off the court or double-teamed on it, superstars have their own separate set of problems, goals and triumphs.

Boxing Head Wants Fine On Monzon

PARIS (UPI) — Bernard Restout, president of the French Boxing Federation, said today world middleweight champion Carlos Monzon should be heavily fined for failure to take a dope test immediately after his successful title defense Saturday against Jose Napoles of Mexico.

Restout also called for sanctions against Monzon's trainer, Hamilcar Brusa, for his attitude toward French boxing officials.

Boxing regulations demand that boxers submit urine samples after fights for drug tests. Napoles submitted to the test but Monzon left the arena minutes after his sixth-round victory.

Restout said that after being alerted by the French doctor who was to do the test, he went to see Brusa.

"The welcome we got was grossly incorrect," he said. "We waited a long time at the hotel, then learned that Monzon was at the Lido (night club). We waited until 3 a.m. only to see Monzon fly into a rage and present us with a specimen prepared hours earlier which we refused."

Boxing sources said the test was eventually fulfilled.

Restout said: "A statement of default was made. I contacted the European Boxing Union (EBU) and the World Boxing Council (WBC) an recommended sanctions."

"When Monzon was warned of the practices of the French Boxing Federation, which are in accord with those of the EBU and WBC, he was most disagreeable, as was Brusa. It's a totally unacceptable attitude."

Restout said two sanctions could be applied to Monzon—suspension in France or a fine.

"This first sanction would be only symbolic because for a first offense any suspension would not be applied. I think a heavy fine should be applied—something in the region of $10,000."

"As for Brusa, his attitude was out of place and it merits sanction too."

Monzon was reported to have earned $250,000 in the bout.

A SOLUTION TO GAS SHORTAGES

There's no problem with gasoline as a musher (background) tunes up a team of huskies in preparation for the annual Iditarod Trail race from Anchorage to Nome, Alaska.

Approximately 100 dogsledders are expected to sign up for the event which will start March 2 as a test of stamina for man and dog alike.

Macnichols Will Seek Reelection

James G. Macnichols, president of the Homestead Valley Sanitary District, took out nomination papers yesterday for reelection to his seat on the district board.

Macnichols, 50, was appointed to the board in 1973 and became its president in 1969. He has served as the board's representative to the Southern Marin sanitary districts to handle sewage treatment in one joint plant.

He is a manufacturer's representative for a sewerage and water equipment company and has an office in South San Francisco. He and his family reside at 316 Rydal Avenue.

Besides Macnichols, board member Kenyon Spalding is also up for reelection to the sanitary district board in June. Both were unopposed in 1970.

Nixon Commends Duke Ellington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Duke Ellington was presented a presidential commendation yesterday by Julie Nixon Eisenhower, who said it bore the added honor of being signed by the President himself, not a machine.

"Dad's signature is the real McCoy," she said. Presidential signatures often are facsimiles.

Dylan Scores Smash In Bay Area Return

OAKLAND (UPI) — Poet-composer Bob Dylan returned to the San Francisco Bay Area for the first time in eight years last night to the roaring applause of 28,000 fans at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

Dylan walked on stage with The Band to a standing ovation and left hours later to another standing ovation after performing 19 of his songs.

John L. Wasserman, jazz critic for the San Francisco Chronicle, said the concert ended with "the dramatic vision of thousands of flaring matches and lighters in the darkened hall, a silent tribute more articulate than all the roars of approbation which had preceded it." Dylan, described by Wasserman as "one who accurately may be called a legend in his own time," is currently in the midst of a 21-city U.S. tour, his first in years.

Dylan sang many of his songs from the 1960s, songs "that spawned slogans, became anthems, signified a sound and furious change in the consciousness of millions and will probably last for decades in the literature," Wasserman said.

Among other musicians attending the concert were Joan Baez, the Grateful Dead, Marty Balin and Grace Slick of the Jefferson Airplane, Santana, founder of the band of that name, Van Morrison and Boz Scaggs.

Dylan's tour ends Feb. 14 in Los Angeles.

YMCA Seeks New Members

The Young Men's Christian Association of Marin is conducting its annual sustaining membership campaign and hopes to raise $20,000 by March 5, according to June Weden, chairman.

More than 90 volunteers are calling on thousands of prospects in the county, she said.

Funds raised will be used for continuing YMCA programs as well as expanding Y services to include a father-daughter program and also a program for fatherless boys and a fourth-sixth grade boys club.

Elaine S. Brockbank Seeks Tam High Seat

Elaine S. Brockbank, an unsuccessful candidate last year for Tamalpais High School District trustee, today said she will try again in the June primary to win a board seat.

She is the first person to announce candidacy for the seat of trustee Frank L. Miller who resigned recently.

"I am seeking election simply because I've worked for 10 years in the Tam district," she said. "I feel that the schools in this area are excellent and would like to contribute in any way I can to that excellent education."

Mrs. Brockbank said she considers projected budget deficits for next year as the district's most important issue but said she has no concrete plans at this time on how the deficit can be met.

"It's very clear that there has to be some careful consideration of all spending and programs and some innovative ways found to budget the money that is available," she said. She is currently the president of the district's citizens' advisory committee and is serving on the superintendent's advisory committee. She was president of the Redwood High School Parent-Teacher Association for two years and headed the Redwood International Student Exchange program for three years.

Mrs. Brockbank, 47, was reared and educated in Utah, where she attended the state university.

She came to Marin in 1963 and lives at 109 Crown Road, Kentfield. She and her husband Reed, a San Francisco doctor, have four children, three Redwood graduates and a fourth who is now a freshman there.

Angry Motorist Cuts Attendant

A Petaluma gas station attendant was slashed yesterday by a knife-wielding motorist who became angry when he learned no gasoline was available.

Attendant Duane R. Decateau, 38, told police a slim black man in a late-model red Volkswagen drove into Whit's Arco truck stop on the Lakeville Highway shortly after 4 a.m.

Decateau said that when he told the man no gasoline was available the man called him a "lying S.O.B." and cut his forearm with a knife.

After Decateau struck back with a wrench handle, the man got into his car and drove away. Police said he hasn't been seen since.

A Tracer On Nixon's Subpoena

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A certified letter containing the first state court subpoena of an American President apparently has been lost in the mail. The judge who issued the historic order said the error left him "speechless."

Superior Court Judge Gordon Ringer, the judge in the Watergate West trial, was said to be incredulous when he first learned yesterday that the subpoena of Richard M. Nixon had not yet arrived in the District of Columbia court.

Judge Ringer's clerk said federal postal officials have put an immediate tracer on the missing envelope, but they said they wouldn't begin to worry until the delay exceeded 15 days. The subpoena was sent to Washington by certified mail a week ago yesterday.

Hearing Tonight On Development Plans

The Sausalito City Council will hold a public hearing on an appeal of the environmental impact report for the proposed Whiskey Springs development in Northern Sausalito at 8 p.m. today in the auditorium of Central School on Caledonia Street.

The impact report, accepted by planning commissioners Jan. 2, and praised for its thoroughness, is being appealed by Douglas B. Martin, a trustee on the Sausalito School District board.

Eaton's Views On Cuban Ties

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Herald today quoted Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton as saying that during his recent visit to Cuba he found Premier Fidel Castro "all for improved relations with the United States."

Eaton added in the telephone interview from Baltimore: "But he won't be influenced a bit by the further use of force or discrimination against him."

Eaton told the Herald he felt sure that "if someone with authority in the United States, either Nixon or (Henry) Kissinger, sat down with Fidel for a day, they could work out a good deal."

Mount Burdell Rezoning Delayed

The Marin County Planning Commission yesterday postponed action on rezoning that would allow fewer homes on some 1,540 acres on the eastern slope of Mount Burdell near Novato.

In delaying action to its March 11 meeting, the planning commission referred the proposed rezoning to the Marin County Airport Land Use Commission which has planning jurisdiction over portions of the property.

The rezoning, which would reduce the number of dwellings from 750 to about 120, covers the 700-acre University of San Francisco property, the 410-acre Pashburg property, the 355-acre Nunes property, the 29-acre Tracy Property and the 47-acre Pinheiro property.

All are located north of Novato and west of Highway 101

UNICEF Chief Slates Address

A United Nations representative will discuss the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) in a public speech Friday at 10:30 a.m. in the Corte Madera Regional Library.

David S. Burgess, UNICEF representative for the United States and Canada, will also talk about his personal experiences with the program which provides financial help for the world's less fortunate children.

Burgess was director of UNICEF in East Asia from 1967 to 1970 and directed programs in Pakistan and Bangladesh.

He is available for the Corte Madera appearance because of a United Nations meeting in San Francisco. His speech will be sponsored by the United Nations.

near the McGraw Hill Book Publishing Co. building.

The action has been recommended by the county planning department to bring zoning into conformance with the county general plan.

Minimum lot size is currently about two acres. That would be changed to five-acre, 10-acre and 60-acre lots under the rezoning, plus some commercial zoning.

The Marin County Planning Commission also:

APPEAL — Denied the appeal of the Strawberry Recreation District over a variance granted Gordon Smith to build a home at 415 East Strawberry Drive with less than required frontyard setback.

TELEPHONE — Approved a use permit for construction of a Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. communications center on the north side of San Geronimo Valley Drive in San Geronimo.

AUTO LOT — Rejected the request of Michael J. Clements of Mill Valley to operate an auto trade lot on Shoreline Highway where owners would display and sell their own vehicles. The auto lot, opposed by area residents, was proposed for 225 Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

LAND DIVISION — Rejected the appeal of Robert Clark of Mill Valley to divide his 5.4-acre parcel on Richardson Way in Tamalpais Valley into four parcels. Commissioners agreed with the county zoning administrator that the land would have to be divided differently.
